Allies Gain Elsewhere

Nazis Stiffen Stand At West of Bulge

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN BELGIUM, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Field Marshal Von Rundstedt suddenly stiffened his stand at the western point of his Belgian wedge today and threw Allied troops back as much as 1,000 yards at points.

At the same time, however, southward stabbing elements of the U.S. 1st Army managed to gain as much as 2,000 yards at other points farther east, possibly indicating that the German commander was shifting armored units from sector to sector to combat each new threat.

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A second German winter offensive threatened Strasbourg from three directions today as British and American troops butted against stonewall German resistance in the hard wedge driven by Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's first surprise attack across Luxembourg

Follow-Up Blows

Enemy Railway, Road Bridges Heavily Raided

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—More than 800 American heavy bombers, escorted by nearly 600 Mustangs, attacked three road and rail bridges across the Rhine at Cologne and Bonn today and bombed several railways and other communications centres in western Germany.

Western Germany was battered overnight by more than 5,000 tons of RAF and RCAF bombs.

The air ministry said 33 bombers—11 of them Canadian—and three fighters were missing from the series of night attacks. Ten German night fighters were destroyed.

A terrific night air battle, "the biggest the RAF bomber command and the Luftwaffe have had" for many months, was fought in the Hannover area as German night fighters sought to protect the junction point, an RAF statement said.

FOLLOW UP RAIDS

The night sweeps came as a sequel to attacks on a score of road and rail junctions yesterday by more than 1,500 U.S. heavy bombers and fighters.

Allied planes yesterday hit virtually every major supply link in the 150-mile distribution zone supporting the German western front offensive. The fleet dropped 3,000 tons of explosives on freight yards and highway junctions from Cologne south to Karlsruhe.

Probably more than 1,500 British and Canadian Lancasters, Halifaxes and Mosquitos joined in the tremendous assault last night which left fires burning in Berlin and Hannover.

SMASH AT TROOPS

They just before dawn RAF heavyweights rained bombs on the battle area behind low-flying Pathfinder aircraft which planted flares among German troop concentrations.

A moment later tons of bombs burst among enemy positions around Houffalize. No Canadian planes took part but there were many Canadian fighters among the RAF crews.

Former Albertan Board Chairman

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Announcement of the retirement of Mr. Justice W. H. Harrison, Saint John, as chairman of the board of referees under the Excess Profits Tax Act, was made last night. Appointed to the position Nov. 1, 1940, he will return to his judicial duties in the chancery and appeal division of the New Brunswick supreme court.

He will be succeeded to the board of referees chairmanship by J. D. Hyndman, formerly a justice of the Alberta supreme court, now living in Ottawa. Other members of the board of referees—Charles P. Fell of Toronto and Kenneth W. Daiglish of Montreal—also are retiring from active participation with the board but it is understood they will continue as nominal members and be available for short periods if their services are required.

Names of K. A. Mapp, Toronto chartered accountant, and T. N. Kirby, Ottawa, secretary of the board, have been mentioned as possible new members.

Allied Casualties Far Under Huns' In Recent Fight

PARIS, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Allied casualties have been far below those suffered by the enemy and have not been particularly high compared with the scale of action since the opening of the Von Rundstedt offensive, an appraisal at supreme headquarters said today.

German casualties since the counter-offensive began Dec. 16 were estimated as in the neighborhood of 100,000, of which about 22,000 were said to be prisoners.

3 Albertans Given Awards By Air Force

FO. J. J. Rigby, 10978 126 street has been awarded the Air Force Cross according to an announcement Saturday by RCAF headquarters, Ottawa.

Also awarded the AFC was FO. R. H. Routledge, Fort Saskatchewan and PO. L. G. Templeman, Blackfoot. The three airmen were included in an honors list containing 35 names. There were 10 Distinguished Flying Crosses awarded; 12 Air Force Crosses and 13 airmen were mentioned in dispatches.

FO. J. J. Rigby said he didn't know what it was awarded for. All I know about it is that my wife telephoned me to say I'd got it.

STATIONED HERE
The officer is serving at North West Air Command headquarters with a Western Air Command squadron, No. 165, attached to the north command.

FO Rigby enlisted in the RCAF in August, 1940, and after his pilot's training went overseas in 1941. On his return from overseas, where he says "nothing exciting happened," he was posted to Trans-Alberta mail squadron where he flew mail for six or seven months. After that he took training as a transport pilot.

Cold to Continue Over Weekend

A total of 6.7 inches of snow has fallen since it started storming on Jan. 3. During the last 24 hours 3.8 inches has fallen. There is a total of 10 inches of snow on the ground and prospects are for more with the weather prediction for the weekend, "Cloudy with light snow, continuing cold."

Maximum temperature in Edmonton yesterday was 4 above zero and the minimum overnight was 3 below. At 10 a.m. it was 3 below and the estimated high for the day is zero.

Temperature in the far north continued around 40 below zero and in the southern part of the province it is higher. At Lethbridge Friday a brief chinook sent the temperature from 12 to 42 above and then back down to 17 above, all in an hour.

City snow-clearing equipment was in action early Saturday cleaning sidewalks and street car tracks, but deep runs in the roadways slowed car traffic. Delivery boys on bicycles, with heavy week-end orders of groceries to deliver seemed to be having the toughest time of all, and many a prospective Sunday dinner rested in more than one snowbank before reaching its destination.

Highways in the Peace River district were reported heavy Saturday morning but roads in the central and southern section of the province were said to be in good condition.

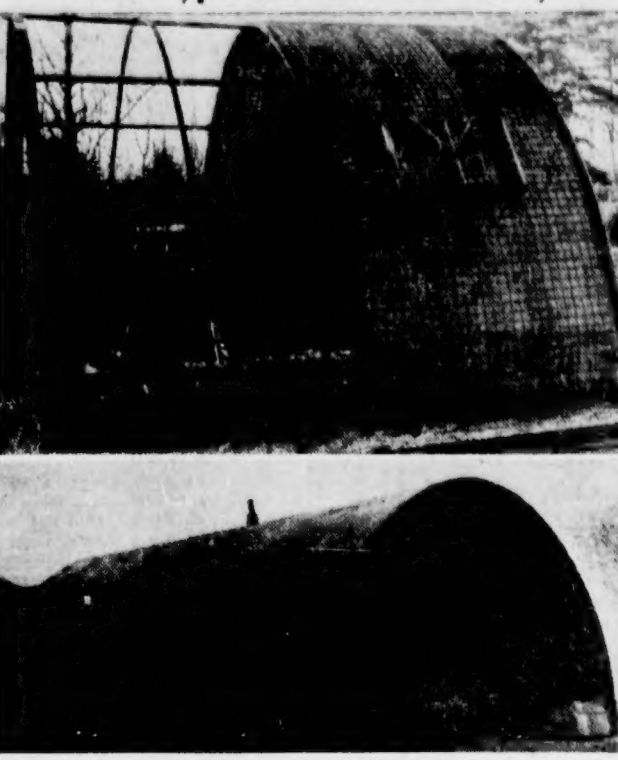

Four Women Perish In New York Fires

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Four women died in fires yesterday, three of them in a blaze which swept the top floor of a seven-story apartment house at Broadway and 96th street. The fourth victim was burned to death in her 20th-floor room at the Hotel Shelton. Thirty persons were overcome by smoke in the apartment house fire, among them 17 firemen.

New-Type Hut For the Army

The Hut Age has arrived on the battle fronts of Europe. First there were the Nissen huts, pre-fabricated houses, portal houses, and now comes the Moody Hut. It is the brain child of Maj. H. H. G. Moody, of Winnipeg, serving with the Royal Canadian Engineers. It is practical because it can be constructed with materials always at hand. Square mesh track, such as is used in laying plane runways, is overlaid on a steel frame. The mesh is then covered with sack cloth, and two coats of cement. Top picture shows a Moody hut in course of construction, and lower shows the completed hut. Four men can construct a Moody hut in an hour, and allowing the cement to dry, it is ready for occupancy in about five days.

111 Jap Planes Bagged, 95 Ships Sunk, Damaged

By MAC R. JOHNSON

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 6.—(BUP)—Planes of the Third U.S. Fleet were revealed today to have destroyed or damaged 95 Japanese ships and 331 aircraft in a 48-hour assault against Formosa and Okinawa that may have interrupted enemy preparations for a counter-offensive in the Philippines.

The blow at Japan's two strongest bastions south of her homeland Tuesday and Wednesday, Pearl Harbor time, damaged and scattered major concentrations of enemy ships and planes at a time when Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion forces rapidly were extending their footholds in the Philippines.

(A Japanese communique said an American convoy, escorted by battleships, aircraft carriers and other warships, appeared off the west coast of the capital island of Luzon last night.)

DAMAGE LISTED
Pacific fleet headquarters announced in a communique that Admiral John McCain's carrier pilots sank 27 enemy ships, damaged 68 others, shot down 111 planes and damaged 220. Though the communique failed to specify the type and tonnage of the ships wrecked, a dispatch from McCain's flagships said they included three destroyers and five destroyer escorts.

The communique also confirmed Japanese reports that other fleet units Friday bombed the island of Chichi and Haha in the Bonin Islands, 1,200 miles to the east and 750 miles south of Tokyo, starting fires and sinking an enemy cargo ship. Enemy shore batteries inflicted "minor damage" on American fleet units.

Police Chief Slain
ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Police Chief William J. Fitzpatrick, 57, was shot to death yesterday in his office, and District Attorney Julian B. Erway identified City Detective John W. McElveney as the killer. Police officers said the detective, about 50, had been considered a good friend of Fitzpatrick.

British Planes Bomb Jap-Held Oil Refinery

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 6.—(BUP)—British carrier planes raided the Japanese-held oil refinery at Pakkalan Brandan in northern Sumatra Thursday and a communique today described the attack as "accurate and successful."

Flying in excellent weather, the bomb-carrying Avengers and rocket-carrying Fireflies placed their entire loads directly in the refinery area, the communique said.

Direct hits were scored on the powerhouse and other important plants of the oil works in addition to oil tanks and other buildings.

Seven Japanese planes were shot down by escorting Corsairs and Hellcats and an undisclosed number of enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground.

The communique said several of the British planes were damaged but that none was lost to enemy action.

Superforts Strike At Jap Mainland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Superfortresses of the Asiatic-based 20th Bomber Command hit industrial targets on the island of Kyushu, part of the Japanese mainland, in a daylight raid today.

A communique issued by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the 20th Air Force, said details of the mission will be released as soon as they become available. There was no indication of the size of the striking force.

The raid was the first on Kyushu targets by the 8-29s since Dec. 19 of last year. Kyushu is the southernmost island of Japan.

In the Dec. 19 raid, a force of about 40 Superforts blasted the big Omura aircraft factory, which has a huge aircraft assembly works and likely was one of today's targets. Today's raid was the sixth since last July on Kyushu targets.

The raid followed by three days an assault by Saipan-based Superforts on Nagoya, another important Japanese aircraft production centre and the site of the Musashima factory of the Nakajima aircraft industry.

Invasion Convoys Reported Closing In on Vital Island

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 6.—(AP)—American invasion convoys were reported closing in on Luzon Island in the Philippines today and Tokyo radio indicated that landings on the island might already be in progress.

There was no comment from Pacific fleet headquarters here on the Japanese reports, first that huge American convoys were nearing Luzon, on which Manila is situated, and then that "Americans may have landed on Luzon."

3 INVASION FLEETS

Tokyo radio declared three Allied invasion fleets, all protected by aircraft carriers, were forging through Philippine waters and declared the situation in those important islands was "fraught with new possibilities."

Only yesterday it was announced American troops had landed unopposed on Marinduque island, 12 miles south of Luzon.

Simultaneously American aircraft struck heavy blows at intermediate points between the Philippines and Japan, ranged up and down the China coast and struck at western Yushu in Japan itself.

GREAT CONVOY

The Japanese radio described one of the American convoys as President Says:

U.S. Will Assume Responsibilities In Freed Lands

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, admitting concern over the Greek and Polish situations, declared today the United States "will not shrink from the political responsibilities which follow in the wake of battle."

In his message to congress the president issued a call for Allied unity at this "most critical phase of the war," warned against "perfectionism" in judging international politics and promised to strive for the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

"We shall not hesitate," he said, "to use our influence—and to use it now—to secure so far as is humanly possible the fulfillment of the principles of the Atlantic Charter."

"We have not shrunk from the military responsibilities brought on by the war. We cannot and will not shrink from the political responsibilities which follow in the wake of battle."

OTHER POINTS

On other foreign policy points the president:

1. Gave no direct hint of his plans for his early February meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.
2. Hailed the return of France to a place of world leadership and disclosed that "we are now about to equip large new French forces with the most modern weapons for combat duty."
3. Declared that "we have housecleaning of our own to do" in building free world trade and commerce.
4. Predicted adoption of the Dumbarton Oaks plan of world organization.
5. Called for mutual understanding among peoples to safeguard peace, stating his purpose to use technological advances in communication "for the common advantage of the world."

Congress Message

Roosevelt Warns Nation Failure in Peace Duties Would Lead to Third War

By C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—President Roosevelt today warned the United States that failure to fulfill its peacetime responsibilities in "an admittedly imperfect world," would lead to a third world war.

In an 8,000 word message to the 79th Congress the President spoke only in general terms of foreign policy but declared its basis was continued co-operation with the Allies.

After the First World War, he said, "we gave up the hope of gradually achieving a better peace because we had not the courage to fulfill our responsibilities in an admittedly imperfect world."

Then he declared—"we must not let that happen again or we shall follow the same tragic road again—the road to a third world war."

The message, read by a clerk to the members of the senate and house of representatives massed in joint session in the house chamber, forecast that 1945 might be "the greatest year of achievement in human history."

HOPES FOR YEAR

He said the year might well bring final victory in Europe, a closing in on the stronghold of Japan, and the establishment of foundations for permanent world security.

For the national front he called for immediate enactment of a national service act which he asked for in vain last year, and for the even more immediate enactment of measures to reclassify and make available for war work, the estimated 4,000,000 men classified as 4-F and thus excused from the draft.

A special message would be sent later calling for a universal training act, the president announced, and he asked Congress to concern

Congress Message

Roosevelt Warns Nation
Failure in Peace Duties
Would Lead to Third War

Itself with the necessity of providing 60,000,000 jobs after the war.

FREE ENTERPRISE

The way should be made open for private enterprise to provide this employment, free from restrictions of cartels and monopolies but the government would have to be prepared to share in the cost of financing new enterprises where private interests could not carry the load alone.

The message did not give any of the detail of American policy toward political problems in Greece, Italy, Poland or Spain.

It was a message on the state of the union looking back over the course of the whole year, and particularly over the past year, which Mr. Roosevelt said had been marked on the whole by substantial progress toward victory. It looked toward the future, too, and rang with notes of confidence.

The message, which Mr. Roosevelt plans to summarize on the radio tonight for the United States and the world, was read to congress after the counting of the electoral votes that gave him a fourth term in the White House.

"In the field of foreign policy," the President told the legislators, "we propose to stand together with the United Nations not for the war alone but for the victory for which the war is fought."

HAVE COMMON HOPE

"It is not only a common danger which unites us but a common hope. Ours is an association not of governments but of peoples—and the peoples' hope is peace."

He renewed a demand for "unconditional surrender," but applied it only to "the armies of our enemies."

That, he said, is the first, but only the first, step toward peace. He accorded recognition to differences which have arisen to plague the Allies, and he pleaded for understanding.

The nearer we come to vanquishing the enemies, he said, the more we inevitably become conscious of differences among the victors.

RAPIDS POWER POLITICS

Assailing any use of power politics in the future world, Mr. Roosevelt declared that it "must not be a controlling factor in international relations."

The President appeared to be answering to some extent recent British criticism of American foreign policy, or an asserted lack of one.

Differences among the Allies, he said, must not be allowed to "divide us and blind us to our more important common and continuing interests in winning the war and building the peace. International co-operation on which enduring peace must be based is not a one-way street."

"Nations like individuals do not always see alike or think alike and international co-operation and progress are not helped by any nation assuming that it has a monopoly of wisdom or of virtue."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke of strenuous days of war ahead and of needs for a wide assortment of weapons with which to fight on to victory.

REPEATS PROPOSAL

He repeated a recommendation of a year ago that congress adopt "a national service act as the most efficient and democratic way of insuring full production for our war requirements . . . at the earliest possible moment."

This time, however, he did not link his demand with other portions of a legislative program, as he did in 1944.

Congress all along has shown little inclination to accept national service. Likewise members have argued vehemently about universal military training when the war ends.

On the subject of universal service in peace time, Mr. Roosevelt said he would send the legislature a special message later. But he said he was clear in his own mind that it was "an essential factor in the maintenance of peace in the future."

STRATEGY CORRECT

Mr. Roosevelt said the Allies had been right in concentrating their military power against Germany first before turning their full might on Japan.

"It was right militarily as well as morally to reject the arguments of those short-sighted people who would have had us throw Britain and Russia to the Nazi wolves and concentrate against the Japanese."

He had high praise for the exploits of each of the other members of the big four nations.

"We cannot forget," he said, "how Britain held the line alone, in 1940 and 1941, and at the same time, despite ferocious bombardment from the air, built up a tremendous armaments industry which enabled her to take the offensive at El Alamein in 1942."

"We cannot forget the heroic defence of Moscow and Leningrad and Stalingrad, or the tremendous offensives of 1943 and 1944 which destroyed formidable German armies."

CHINESE STAND

"Nor can we forget how, for more than seven long years, the Chinese people have been sustaining the barbarous attacks of the Japanese and containing large enemy forces on the vast areas of the Asiatic mainland."

"In the future we must never forget the lesson that we have learned—that we must have friends who will work with us in peace as they have fought at our side in war."

Calling the renaissance of the French nation one of the year's most heartening events, Mr. Roosevelt said France's liberation means that her great influence "will again be available in meeting the problems of peace."

FRANCE'S INTEREST

"We fully recognize," he added, "France's vital interest in a lasting solution of the German problem and the contribution which she can make in achieving international security."

But he gave no hint whether France might be invited to sit in on the prospective meeting he plans with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. He has said this meeting will take place after his inauguration Jan. 20.

In one field of foreign policy, Mr. Roosevelt made a direct commitment. America, he said, shall not hesitate to use its influence and use it now "to secure as far as is humanly possible the fulfillment of the principles of the Atlantic Charter."

TAKE RESPONSIBILITIES

"We have not shrunk from the military responsibilities brought on by this war," he declared. "We cannot and will not shrink from the political responsibilities which follow in the wake of battle."

Diplomats sought to appraise these words in the light of a feeling in some quarters that Russia and Britain have winked at provisions of the charter calling for self-determination of peoples.

Mr. Roosevelt himself said he would not be frank if he did not admit concern about many situations, the Greek and Polish, for example.

NOT SIMPLE PROBLEMS

"But those situations," he said, "are not as easy or as simple to deal with as some spokesmen, whose sincerity I do not question, would have us believe. We have obligations, not necessarily legal to the exiled governments, to the underground leaders, and to our major Allies who came much nearer the shadows than we did."

"We and our Allies have declared that it is our purpose to respect the rights of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live and to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them. But with internal dissension, with many citizens of liberated countries still prisoners of war or forced to labor in Germany, it is difficult to guess the kind of self-government the people really want."

GUARDED STATEMENT

In what may have been a guarded call for eventual plebiscites in both Poland and Greece, the President went on to say that during the interim period the United States and other Allies have a duty "to use our influence to the end that no temporary or provisional authorities in the liberated countries block the eventual exercise of the peoples' rights freely to choose the government and institutions, under which as free men, they are to live."

The task, he said, isn't helped by stubborn partisanship by opposing internal factions.

Declaring that many of the problems of peace are upon the Allies

Luzon. The other convoys were reported respectively west of Panay island and south of Negros island.

In a two-day assault on Formosa and Okinawa, Japanese-held bastions guarding the China coast, carrier planes from the Pacific fleet sank or damaged 95 enemy ships and destroyed 111 planes. It was announced by Admiral Chester Nimitz.

The assault lasted two days and it was believed the aircraft sped on to landing fields in China.

Invasion of Marinduque was announced by Gen. MacArthur who said this seventh Philippine island liberated puts the Allies in "direct contact with the southern Luzon coast."

On Mindoro, likewise invaded without opposition Dec. 15, the enemy persisted in night air attacks.

Three hundred more Japanese were killed and several captured in continued mopping up of Leyte island. This pushes the total close to 122,000.

Former Airmen

Are Joining Army

Young men being currently discharged from the RCAF because of reduced requirements of the air force are joining the Canadian Active Army in large numbers it was disclosed here Saturday.

WOJ, RSM, B. J. Barnes, in charge of army recruiting in Edmonton, said that 15 former airmen signed up for service in the army on Friday alone.

"They are young fellows with 10 months of training in the air force who have not qualified for air crew. They are fine types. In most cases they have not yet been called for army training but desire to get back into the service at once," the Sgt. Major said.

It has been estimated that fully one-third of airmen being discharged are joining up immediately for service with the army through-out Alberta.

Critique Neglect

Of Road Detours

CALGARY, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Sharp criticism of the provincial department of public works because of the manner in which detours were "neglected when major highways were under construction" was voiced in a resolution passed at a meeting of the southern section of the Alberta Motor Transport Association here yesterday.

The resolution asked that a letter be forwarded to the department requesting that properly maintained detours should be provided when major repairs are being made to highways.

It was further suggested that all culverts on secondary highways used as detours should be the same width as main highway culverts.

A recommendation will be made to the highway traffic board requesting the easing of regulation on trucks coming to a complete stop at railway crossings, further recommendations to be made to the board include that of increasing the 30-mile speed limit of trucks to 35 miles an hour.

The show was over and the theatre in darkness, when seven-year-old Mike Andrechuk, 10556 98 street, awakened soon after 1 a.m. Saturday. Unable to get out, the boy began shouting. His voice was heard from a nearby cafe.

Police were called, hollering instructions to the captive as to how the exit door operated. At 1:40 a.m. the lad walked out. Taken to his mother, officers were told that she knew he had gone to the show but thought he had later gone to see his father in Calder.

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Flight Officer Rhoda Keir, of Calgary, is the first member of the RCAF Women's Division from Canada to attend one of the week-end courses for members of the British armed services at Princeton University, Princeton, N.J. The courses are aimed at better British-American understanding, and also among 28 officers from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Bermuda and Canada taking the course was FO Margaret C. Northwood of Winnipeg, at present stationed in Washington.

even while the war continues, the President said the United Nations will go forward vigorously and resolutely in creating an integrated world security system.

The message did not give any of the detail of American policy toward political problems in Greece, Italy, Poland or Spain.

CHIDES CRITICS

But it chided those who criticize and question these policies as disclosed by activities of the major Allies and who create the impression that serious differences exist between the major Allied powers.

"We and our Allies will go on fighting together to ultimate, total victory," he said. The recent counter-attacks of the Germans were less dangerous in terms of actual winning the war, than the wedges the enemy seeks to drive between the major Allies.

POUND YANK'S REAR

The Germans had brought up heavy artillery, up to 280-mm. long-range guns, and were pounding the American rear centres of Saarbrueck and Saar Union.

The situation at Wingen was obscure. It was not certain whether the Allies still controlled vital highways from Strasbourg to Sarre Union and Sarreguemines.

A military expert explained that the word "infiltration" used to describe the enemy penetration to the area might easily cover a powerful assault, considering the heavily-wooded terrain.

The slight gains, and even some withdrawals of Allied forces around the rim of Von Rundstedt's Ardennes bulge indicated that the offensive to erase the damage of that breakthrough had ground to a virtual stop.

MANY HANDICAPS

Blizzards, giving way to fog, ice-crosted roads and intense cold, combined with expert German defence, were handicaps which even a new secret artillery weapon developed by the United States Navy had not overcome.

Meantime, far to the north of the Maas (Meuse) river, Polish units of the 1st Canadian Army probed German north-bank defences. Two raiding parties crossing in the Hausden region, about 15 miles north-northeast of Tilburg, took no prisoners and suffered four casualties.

Canadian artillery support from Canadian tanks, made the first daylight crossing of the Maas to date, running into enemy machine-gun fire but encountering no artillery fire replying to the armored guns.

DEADLY WEAPON

The American new weapon, whose nature was still a military secret, went into large-scale action near Beffe in the northwestern angle of the Von Rundstedt wedge yesterday and left the ground covered with German dead, a field dispatch reported.

The continued bad weather and intensified enemy counter-attacks along the northern rim of the salient slowed the pace of Field Marshal Montgomery's offensive, involving the British 2nd and U.S. 1st and 9th Armies.

On the south side of the salient, the U.S. 3rd Army crossed the Sure river and entered Goersdorf, 12 miles southeast of Bastogne.

Thirteen miles west of Bastogne other infantry drove up half a mile and cut the St. Hubert-Bastogne road within two miles of St. Hubert, at the southwestern tip of the German wedge. Tillet, eight miles west of Bastogne, was captured.

3½-MILE ADVANCE

Since the start of the push on the north side Allied II's had been driven forward 3½ miles at the most.

One gain of 2½ miles in the Liemieux area to the edge of that town 19 miles north of Bastogne ironed out a kink in the line yesterday, but advances were mostly limited to around 1,000 yards.

In one advance on its east flank, the U.S. 1st Army vanguards reached the Salm river southeast of Stavelot.

"It was a day of some progress against heavy German opposition," said a commentator at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters. "There was hard fighting throughout the day."

The Germans were supporting some of their counter-attacks with tanks and were flaying the Allied spearheads with mortar, rocket, artillery and anti-tank fire from their frozen dugouts behind snow-concealed minefields and tripwires.

Last month was the sunniest December since 1919. During the month there were 114.8 hours of bright sunshine, it was reported by the Edmonton meteorological office Saturday.

Monty's Task
Is Said About
Toughest Yet

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The average Briton today accepted the fact that Field Marshal Montgomery has been placed in control of four Allied armies on the western front as a temporary measure in view of the dent in the Allied front line carved out by the German December offensive.

The revelation that the 21st Army group commander now is directing all forces north of the enemy's Belgian bulge was seen by the man in the street as a necessary measure to ensure over-all command in that zone, especially since communications between the groups north and south of the bulge obviously were somewhat disrupted.

TOUGH PROPOSITION

Today's Daily Mail in a front page story under the banner-line: "Montgomery: The Full Story," said the position "was about as tough a proposition as Montgomery ever had to face."

The story added: "It was a position momentarily of tremendous confusion and not on his own front. He was simply being handed what looked like a very dangerous situation and asked to clean it up."

The Mail added: "Without the really magnificent fighting qualities of certain American divisions he never could have done it."

Alan Moorhead, Daily Express war correspondent, writing from "the Western Front," said not only was Field Marshal Montgomery in charge of the whole northern flank, but also he has his own staff, men he called his "First Eleven" using a cricket term.

FOUGHT BIG BATTLES

"These are the generals who designed and fought the Mediterranean battles from El Alamein onwards," Moorhead added. "They controlled the Normandy landings from the first assault until the German army was smashed. Now after five months they've come back into the Allied field command again."

The News Chronicle said in an editorial: "The news that Monty is in command will be welcomed, not because he is British, but because he understands, better than anyone else, how the Germans fight and how they can be beaten."

Destroyer Lost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The destroyer Reid has been lost to enemy action in the Philippine area, the United States Navy announced yesterday. No announcement was made as to extent of casualties.

Rushed to Front

Tommies Thrown Into Battle
Three Days After Foe Drive

By CHARLES LYNCH

FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 6.—(CP-Reuters)—British troops were thrown against Field Marshal von Rundstedt's counter-offensive only three days after it started.

On Dec. 19, three days after the start of the German counter-blow, it can now be told, correspondents at these headquarters were told in confidence that Field Marshal Montgomery had taken command of the forces then bearing the brunt of the enemy's panzer attacks.

British troops were rolling across the country to be thrown into what, at that time, appeared to be a gaping breach in the United States 1st Army line.

Anxious days followed, but men of the United States 1st Army, who had fought so valiantly under Field Marshal Montgomery in Normandy, steadied their ranks, slowed the German onrush, halted it and then pushed the spearheads back.

Lt-Gen. Omar Bradley, having relinquished the bulk of his 12th Army Group armies to Montgomery, turned his full attention to the southern flank of the enemy's Ardennes salient.

The result was the relief of Bastogne—the first really cheering piece of news for the Allies since the German break-through.

While this was going on British troops were rushing across country and into the lines facing the further German penetrations north of Rochefort.

Now von Rundstedt, who had hoped to be at least in Antwerp, is copped between British forces on the northwest and Americans to the north and south.

The pilot was about to close his interview when he added as an afterthought — "Oh, say — it may have something to do with a flight I made from Rivers to Toronto last September with a couple of badly injured WD's who'd been hurt in an aircraft crash. Another chap flew them from Port Hardy to Rivers and I took them from there."

The two "Wids" are alive today because of the efficiency and speed of that flight.

Then, FO. Rigby had another thought.

OUTSTANDING AWARD

But apart from these two incidents, Rigby can't think of any reason for his award. The red-and-white striped ribbon is awarded air crew personnel for outstanding feats of flying in non-operational areas. It is a relatively unusual award.

Born in Forward, Sask., FO. Rigby received his education at Moose Jaw, where he worked for several years with the Canadian National Railways. He is married to an English "war bride" and has one son, 19-month-old Barry. His family resides in Edmonton at present. A brother, Sgt. Air Gunner Edward Rigby is serving in Canada.

U.S. Diversions To Pacific War Sharply Ranned

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—The Canadian capital has remained an interested observer of the present dispute raging in the press of Britain and of the United States over Anglo-American relations. This dispute moved into a new phase yesterday when the influential London weekly, The Economist, published sharp criticism of high American military policy, on the ground that U.S. diversions of strength to the Pacific weakened reserves for the war against Germany, and that the strategy of lining up Allied armies rather than striking through in one place were errors prolonging the war.

Since Anglo-American military policy has governed the general terms of Canada's participation in the war, symptoms of disagreement are regarded in Ottawa as of utmost importance. There has been dissent here, though unexpressed, with the American concept of running both European and Pacific wars on virtually equal terms.

This concept has never found favor with Canadian military and governmental authorities, who have concentrated this nation's strength in the European war. The wisdom of this policy seems to be borne out with recent developments, and it is probable that Canada's full entry into the Pacific war—a point on which U.S. editorial opinion has criticized this country—will be further postponed.

One of the chief elements of warfare affected by the U.S. strategy has been ocean transportation. The shipping still required for war and relief supplies for Europe, some opinion here holds, affects the military situation in Belgium and Italy, and may determine the post-war situation in Europe which will depend on the speed with which the Allies are able to feed starving people.

This idea receives illustration in the remark that there is little in the Greek civil war situation that could not be cured by two or three food ships.

PROMINENT FARMER ELECTED DIRECTOR BANK OF TORONTO

JOHN J. E. McCAGUE has been elected a Director of the Bank of Toronto. He will bring a wealth of practical farming knowledge and a sympathetic understanding of the farmer's problems that will be invaluable to his associates on the Bank's directorate. Mr. McCague is president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, vice-chairman of the Canadian National Live Stock Records Committee, and vice-president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada. In 1921, after receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture from Ontario Agricultural College, he was appointed representative by the Ontario Department of Agriculture for South Simcoe and opened offices at Alliston, Ont. He later represented the Department in Carleton County. In 1928 he took over management of T.P. Loblaw's noted Stevenson Farms at Alliston, and following Mr. Loblaw's death in 1933, purchased part of Stevenson Farms and established his own Glenafon Farm where he has developed an outstanding pure bred Holstein herd. Mr. McCague is past president of the Canadian Swine Breeders' Association and the Canadian Fox Breeders' Association.

Asks Cancellation Of U.S. Conventions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—James F. Byrnes, United States war mobilization director, proposed last night the cancellation of conventions scheduled after Feb. 1 unless they are in the war interest.

The voluntary ban proposed, with President Roosevelt's approval, would apply to conventions attended by more than 50 persons.

Mr. Byrnes said he was so certain his appeal "would receive immediate public support and general co-operation" that he has taken no measures to establish government enforcement procedures.

He appointed a committee, headed by director J. M. Johnson of the office of defence transportation, to receive and pass upon applications for meetings to be attended by more than 50 individuals. This agency is to decide whether the conventions are "sufficiently in the war interest to warrant the tax on transportation and services."

Major Changes In Army Call-Up Rules Unlikely

By JACK WILLIAMS
OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(CP)—National Selective Service is maintaining its call-up quota of 5,000 men a month, director Arthur MacNamara said today, and from other well-informed sources came indications that unless army requirements are stepped up considerably no major change in present call-up regulations is expected.

It is known, however, to be no easy task to meet the 5,000-a-month quota and any step-up in this figure would have to be followed by the tapping of new manpower fields.

Present call-up regulations apply to single men from 18 to 37 years of age and married men 18 to 32. Single men who have reached their 38th birthday are not taken into the army under the call-up plan which leaves married men from 32 to 37 years the only age group to which the call-up could be extended.

EXTENSION NOT HINTED

There has been no suggestion that the regulations will be extended to take in this group in the immediate future, largely because the number of men who would be obtained would be relatively small. In the higher age groups medical rejections are more numerous and in addition a larger proportion of these men hold key war jobs than is the case in the younger age groups.

The release of 4,200 RCAF trainees, most of whom have become available for military service, when air force recruiting was suspended, has been an important factor in meeting present army needs, but once these were absorbed by the army selective service's task will probably become more difficult. In the face of this a continued tightening up in the policy of granting deferments is expected.

While no decision has yet been reached, consideration is being given to the calling of a meeting of the university advisory board of selective service. Should such a meeting be held the regulations applying to university students would come under general review and it is possible the number of students who now are excused from military service would be reduced.

Approve Young Man As Head of Church

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Nomination of the 57-year-old Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, to be Archbishop of Canterbury will place in the Church of England's highest post the youngest incumbent in modern times and some church quarters suggested yesterday the move was made because "these are times for a young man at the head of the church."

This was said to be the reason why Rt. Rev. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, who will be 70 next month, was not "translated" to Canterbury like the two previous archbishops, Lord Lang, the former Rt. Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, who retired in 1942, was 64 on appointment and his successor, the late Dr. William Temple, was 61.

Church spokesmen said, however, there is no rule that the Archbishop of York is automatically elected to the Archbishopric of Canterbury when a vacancy occurs.

28th Strike Made On Japs' Airbase

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the 27th and 28th successive daily strikes at Iwo Jima, Japanese airbase in the Volcano Islands, in a communique yesterday which omitted mention of the continuation of carrier plane attacks on Formosa and Okinawa.

Lack of information in the communique concerning the whereabouts of the fast carrier task force which struck Formosa and Okinawa Tuesday and Wednesday (North American time) indicated radio silence while the U.S. 3rd Fleet was retiring from the target area.

The navy has not yet provided details on the two days' operations against the big Japanese bases north of Luzon, Philippines.

Secret Gun Breaks Foe Attack

By WES GALLAGHER

BEFFE SECTOR, Belgium, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A new secret American artillery weapon, used on a large scale on the western front for the first time, shattered German counter-attacks yesterday trying to halt the United States 1st Army drive southward in the Belgium bulge.

As a result the snow in this area was blanketed with enemy dead.

German resistance to the American offensive south into the bulge, however, stiffened yesterday with heavy fighting reported around Odeigne, seven miles east. Sleet and snow cut tank operations to a minimum.

Tanks and tank destroyers slid around the roads looking like steel elephants doing nua dances.

Details of this new secret weapon were held up for reasons of security, but it was something the United States Navy had developed and which was found to be of great use against ground troops.

Said Costly Slogan

Senator Urges Allies Drop Brutal "No Terms" Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.) last night called on the American people to demand that the Allies abandon "the brutal and costly slogan of unconditional surrender."

The Montanan, in a broadcast address, also asked: 1. Creation of a United Nations political council "to see that the present series of disgraceful unilateral peace settlements now taking place in Europe stops." 2. Steps to create a United States of Europe as "the only basic cure for her ancient ills."

"Since no real agreement could be reached among the 'Big Three' about the future United Nations organization contemplated in the Moscow declaration and advocated by the United States, Dumbarton Oaks is a grim hoax," he said.

"No nation today trusts the other nations sufficiently to warrant a single gesture towards risking its security on the success of an international organization."

He declared that until the "unconditional surrender" slogan is withdrawn "we shall go on blowing Europe and our boys to bits without rhyme or reason, still ignorant of why we fight."

Petaín Planned "Legal" Regime

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP-Reuters)—Arrest of Henri Lemaigre-Dubreuil and Jean Rigaud in France of charges of "plotting against the security of the French republic," is believed to stem from a last-minute attempt by Marshal Petaín last summer to confront the Allied invasion armies with a "legal" government as an alternative to one under Gen. de Gaulle.

Arrest of the two men was announced Thursday.

According to the semi-official Paris press, proof was found among the marshal's papers that, during the last months of his rule, he contemplated a recall of the pre-war parliament.

Farmers in Britain Seek More Machines

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—"The farmers and county (war agricultural) committees have spent something like £100,000,000 (about $450,000,000) during the war on machinery alone, and farmers today are still spending £25,000,000 a year and yet cry for more," said Education Minister R. A. Butler in a speech to Essex farmers recently, in 1939 the United Kingdom had 35,000 tractors. Now it has more than three times that number.

Japs' Strength

CHUNGKING, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A Chinese army spokesman estimated yesterday that the Japanese now have between 19 and 20 divisions aggregating more than 300,000 men, available for action in central and south China.

A Letter from Home!

PO. Neil Colville, RCAF, more familiarly known to millions of hockey followers as "Rangy" Neil Colville, ace centre ice player of the New York Rangers, is shown above as he faced off the puck in the opening night's attraction of the Edmonton Athletic Club Pee-Wee Hockey League at the Arena. The above scene was taken in the opening game of a triple-header. In the foreground at the left is Jack Grace, centre ice player of Allard's (Leckie's), while the opposing centre man at the right is Frank Elinski of Arrows. The referee with his back to the wall is Cecil "Tiger" Goldstick, recently demobilized from the Navy. PO Colville started his hockey here as a "pew-wee" and went up through junior ranks by way of the great EAC team of 1934 which reached the Dominion final, to the New York Rangers where he was a pillar of strength until he joined the armed forces. He was here for a few days' leave before reporting for duty to Ottawa. He is one of hockey's greatest players and has been an inspiration to many "pew-wees."

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas. The Edmonton Bulletin prints the news of the week in letter form. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends.

Dear

As the first week of 1945 draws to a close we find ourselves getting into our stride once more and adjusting ourselves to the usual routine after the Christmas season. It takes a little effort to settle down and to realize that another year is winging its way onward. The weather, which turned cold just before Christmas, is continuing cold, and we have had considerable snow.

While we are busily engaged on the home front, we are casting our eyes steadily in the direction of the great battles now being fought in Europe, and our thoughts are with you gallant boys from morning until night.

We hope and pray that you will be safe and that soon Allied Arms will be victorious and you will return to take your place in the economic life of the country.

Here are some details of happenings here in which you might be interested.

January 1

There were 10 babies born here on New Year's Day. The honor of being the first baby to be left at a city hospital went to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Polak of Calmar. The Stark delivered the precious little bundle to the General hospital at nine seconds past midnight. Just 11 seconds later, the Stark visited the Royal Alexandra hospital and left a son for Mr. and Mrs. John Burchak, 9445 Cameron street. Last year the procedure was reversed with the Royal Alexandra winning by a few seconds. One set of twins was included in the group, a boy and a girl being born to Mr. and Mrs. Larsen Hagenson of Viking, at the University hospital.

More than 800 men, representative of all walks of life, visited the Legislative buildings to pay their respects to His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen. Dr. Robert Newton, President of the University of Alberta, received with His Honor. This is one of the few major functions in the course of the year reserved exclusively for men.

Inspector Robert Michael Wood, head of the RCMP criminal investigation bureau here, was found dead in the garage at the rear of his home on the South Side, and it was determined that death was due either to a heart seizure or carbon monoxide poisoning. He was 43 years old.

Fire which drove out a family of seven children, their parents and a roomer, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harris, 12134 51 street, in an early Sunday morning blaze.

Canadian hockey unbeaten string to four straight. Canadians marked up an 8-2 triumph over Maple Leafs in Saturday night's Junior Hockey League fixture at the Arena.

January 2

Driving in seven goals in the first two periods without reply, Canadian Athletic Club went on to administer a 9-2 beating to the visiting Calgary All-Star junior hockeyists before 1,800 fans at the Arena.

Land and improvement tax collections, sales of city-owned land, and revenue collected by the city license department all created new records during 1944. It was revealed in figures obtained at the Civic clock. Tax collections for 1944 amounted to $5,065,003.07 as against $4,488,317.75 for 1943, an increase of $576,685.32. The 1944 figures include $445,000 tax payments by the city-owned utilities. This figure was not included in the 1943 taxes, and therefore the actual increase in collections from land owners is $160,971.32.

Achilles Raphael Schmid, 11602 88 street, is dead. He would have been 71 years old in two days. He had lived here for 40 years.

Fifty-one students will be graduated by the University of Alberta in a special convocation next Saturday. Of the total 32 will receive the degree of doctor of medicine; 11 doctor of dental surgery, and eight the degree of bachelor of science. This special graduation ceremony is in connection with the special speeded-up program to provide more medical and dental practitioners for the armed forces.

A one-day meeting of regional chairmen and secretaries of post-war farm and business survey committees will be held at the Legislative buildings on Thursday. This will be in the nature of a preliminary to the post-war survey conference which begins on Jan. 15.

John A. McPherson, member of the first Alberta legislature, is dead at Vancouver. He was 89 years old. A pioneer farmer of the Stony Plain district he was elected for the Stony Plain riding in the first provincial general election and was re-elected in 1909. He was defeated in 1913.

January 3

Edmonton's bank clearings for 1944, in common with tax collections, sales of city-owned property, and other business activities, reached an all-time high when $486,241,982 was cleared through the Edmonton Clearing House, compared with $435,430,208 in 1943, an increase of $50,811,774. Clearings for December, 1944, amounted to $44,467,127 compared with $43,381,251 for December, 1943, an increase of $1,085,876.

Wage increases averaging five cents an hour for four recognized classes of workers under the Alberta Minimum Wage Act will become effective Feb. 1, according to Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of trade and industry. All increases are on the minimum basis of wages and amount to about $2 a week. Heretofore the working week was 42 hours, but under the new order, a 40-hour week will be permitted with a maximum of 54 hours.

Mr. Justice H. H. Parley, whose appointment to the Supreme Court of Alberta, trial division, was announced two weeks ago, will be sworn in as a judge on Jan. 15.

Turnover in 1944 of the 56 Co-Operative stores operated throughout the province by the United Farmers of Alberta Co-Operative organization, was more than $800,000 compared with $515,000 in 1943, according to R. M. McCool, superintendent of the United Farmers of Alberta central co-operative.

Secretary of schools at Bonnyville prior to enlisting in the RCAF two years ago, J. F. Swan has been appointed secretary to the provincial education department.

The RCAF will continue to assist and support the air cadet movement in every way possible, according to air force headquarters. This assurance was given in order to dissipate reports which have gained circulation that suspension of recruiting for aircrew had led to withdrawal of RCAF support for the cadets.

Sale of War Savings Stamps here in 1944 amounted to $31,385, according to R. H. Settle, chairman of the committee in charge. These sales were made through the various stamp bars located here.

January 4

Most elaborate and extensive system of modern communications maintained by the RCAF in Canada is controlled and is being developed by Northwest Air Command in territory under its jurisdiction, it was revealed here by Air Vice-Marshal T. A. Lawrence, air officer commanding the Northwest Air Command. This extensive system of ground and radio facilities which includes several radio transmitting stations of greater power than the average commercial station is 90 per cent. completed, and when finished will have a value of more than $4,000,000. There are 2,400 miles of telephone land lines.

Sgt. Benjamin Ducloux, 33 years a member of the city police force, has resigned and the resignation has been accepted, according to Chief Constable Reginald Jennings. Resignation followed his suspension, along with Sgt. Percy Appleby and Constable Arthur Johnson, as a result of breaches of the City Police Discipline Code on Christmas Day, Chief Jennings said.

Patronage of Edmonton's street railway system during 1944 reached an all-time record when 32,100,000 passengers crowded into buses and street cars, as against 30,726,208 for the previous year. This is an increase of 1,373,792, or 4.5 per cent. During December of 1944 there were 2,984,389 passengers carried on the system compared with 2,902,135 for December, 1943, an increase of 82,254.

Sale of city-owned land during 1945 is expected to equal that of 1944. The first two days the office was open this month indications were that business would be brisk, as eight parcels of land were sold to prospective home-builders.

A three-goal blast in the final period after keeping an even ten for the other two, gave South Side a 5-2 victory over Edmonton Athletic Club in a scheduled Junior Hockey League fixture at the Arena. Coach Joe Brown's first-string South Side squad held a distinct margin after the first few minutes.

January 5

David Robb, proprietor of Robb's Confectionery, 9448 118 avenue, was injured by flying glass when a gas explosion took place in a shed at the rear of his store. The explosion shook buildings and broke many windows in an area covering several blocks. Mr. Robb was the only casualty and was taken to hospital for treatment. It is believed a break in a gas pipe led to the explosion, although the direct cause has not been determined.

Further expanding the number of portfolios in the provincial cabinet, a new department, that of reconstruction, will be set up by the Legislature at its coming session, according to Premier Ernest Manning. The first large turnover of downtown real estate since the beginning of the year was the purchase by The Royal Bank of Canada, from the Hudson's Bay Company, of the lot on the southwest corner of Jasper avenue and 105 street. The purchase price was not disclosed but it is believed to be in excess of the assessed value of $32,200.

January 6

Mrs. A. B. Clutterham of Tofteld is dead. She was the daughter of Mrs. J. H. Tofteld and had been ill for several months. She was 57 years old.

Mickey Williams, Edmonton Negro found guilty in the supreme court by Chief Justice W. R. Howson on a charge of causing grievous bodily harm to Robert C. Geary, was sentenced to serve two years in the Prince Albert penitentiary. The case resulted from a fracas at a carnival on Sept. 11 last when Williams drew a razor and slashed Geary on the left shoulder, necessitating his removal to hospital.

Indications are that cold weather will continue and that more snow is in the offing. That's all for now. Best of everything until next week.

Lots for Servicemen

The finance committee has recommended to the city council a discount of 20 percent on the purchase price of city lots bought by servicemen who resided in Edmonton before enlistment. This concession is by way of being a compromise between the proposal to give a 10 percent discount and the request of the Central Committee of War Auxiliaries that the lots be given to servicemen free.

It is still not clear why the request of the Central Committee for free lots and a five-year tax exemption was rejected.

The fact that any kind of a concession has been made at all indicates the intrinsic merit in the proposal. The difference between the finance committee and the petitioners is merely one of degree. If the civic authorities, therefore, feel that something should be done, there seems to be little reason for haggling over the extent of it.

One alderman has pointed out, with considerable discernment, that the discount should be viewed as a gesture of good will rather than as a measure of financial assistance. This is so exceedingly true that it seems a pity the finance committee has not been able to more accurately evaluate the worth and direction of that good will.

For any device that will encourage the establishment of homes in this community is worth infinitely more to the city than to the immediate beneficiaries of the plan.

The servicemen and servicewomen can probably worry along without free lots. But Edmonton cannot worry along without homes.

And one can take it as a fact that men and women discharged from the services will settle wherever prospects are brightest. Their choice of a community will not be made along sentimental lines, but along the lines of practical consideration.

Edmonton should not forget that those who have served overseas have severed, to some extent, the ties of habit and custom that bound them to this community. If we expect them to return to Edmonton permanently, we must make Edmonton attractive to them.

This principle applies not only to the acquisition of property, but to beautification and civic services as well.

Any decision, therefore, which falls short of the major concession, as suggested by the Central Committee of War Auxiliaries, is a decision which cheats, not the servicemen, but the community itself.

Why Can't We

The American 1st and 9th armies have been linked with the British 2nd and the Canadian 1st armies, under the command of Field Marshal Montgomery.

This consolidates the Allied forces on the north flank of the Rundstedt "bulge" into one large group under unified direction. It is General Eisenhower's plan to tighten the barrier which covers Liege, central and northern Belgium, and Holland.

With General Patton's army on the south flank jabbing relentlessly to narrow still further the Bastogne gap in the twelve-mile corridor through which the Nazi spearhead divisions must draw supplies or back track to the Siegfried defences, the position of these 80,000 troops grows more precarious as the days pass.

It will be far from good news to von Rundstedt that the man who chased Rommel out of Africa is now Patton's opposite number on his other flank. Between these two his flung panzer units are likely to have to fight both ways at once, whether to hold their ground or make a get-away. That they can get their bogged-down offensive going again he can hardly suppose.

The freedom with which General Eisenhower places American troops under a British commander, as he has on other occasions placed British and Canadian troops under an American commander, should signify something to those back on the home fronts who seem more disposed to pull the Allies apart than to hold them together.

Where victory is to be won or lost our men are fighting with little regard to where their comrades came from or whether they are led by a man of their own or some other country. Is it too much to hope that civilians in the home lands can catch that same spirit of undiscriminating comradeship?

For Travelers Only

President R. C. Vaughan of the Canadian National Railways has been indulging in some New Year forecasts about the post-war trend in railway sleeping cars. "After the war," says Mr. Vaughan, "the trend will be to favor what we call 'private space' in sleeping cars, such as chambers and double rooms."

We confess to a profound ignorance of what a "chambre" may be. But if it involves a change in the present lower and upper berth arrangement, generations will doubtless rise up to call it blessed.

The berth system probably has the virtue of accommodating the largest number of sleeping passengers in the minimum space. But under what barbaric conditions!

Almost everyone has suffered the minor dislocations incidental to disrobing in an upper. Everyone has experienced the nocturnal distress contingent upon the snores of older neighbors and the wails of younger ones. Everyone has felt those pangs of insecurity provoked by the thought of laying himself down to sleep separated only by two thicknesses of drapery from all sorts and conditions of men.

Everyone has known the frantic jostling and crowding each morning in the washroom.

Mr. Vaughan's message, then, offers an exhilarating thrill of hope to all who travel by rail.

For the new private rooms, he says, will be models of ingenuity, containing almost everything but a kitchen range and an icebox.

Perhaps there is something in the theory of post-war miracle after all.

No person in Germany can now get his teeth fixed without an official order. If the Nazis haven't any more to eat than they deserve to have, that won't matter much.

News from Athens is that the Elag group agreed to lay down their arms but only on condition that policemen and the national guards should be disbanded first. A parallel situation in Canada would be that a political party took arms and refused to put them aside unless the R.C.M.P. and the home guard troops were first deprived of their weapons. That such a situation should arise here is unimaginable, but there is no doubt about what would happen if it ever should arise. The group would be told to pile arms—or else. This marks the wide difference between democratic government as Canadians know it and the conception of democracy which obtains in Greece.

Germany Must Be Left Capable of National Life

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

We have been unable to transform the political coalition into an entity to deal with Germany. I have asked: why?

We cannot understand the reasons by looking only at Germany. The Allied approach to the German question has been to try to find a compromise between opposite interests, instead of creating a new common interest, by creating a new world. We are trying to fit a defeated Germany into a world of conflicting powers. We are unable to draft a program for a defeated Germany, because the accession of any part of Germany to any one of the Allied powers, means an extension of the power of one ally at the cost of another. At the bottom of our dilemma over Germany is the fear of the Allied powers of each other.

The Russians are making a Marxian diagnosis of the situation—but contemplating an old-fashioned nationalist power therapy. The Russians also have a schizophrenia.

Dorothy Thompson

If they wanted to make all Europe communist, that would be a policy. But they don't. Under the slogan of security the Russians want to extend their power. The extension of their power demands that they even suppress social revolutions that might oppose an extension of Soviet nationalism. So they choose pan-Slavism and German and European partition instead.

In place of a reasonably organized Europe, they want a weak and disorganized Europe riddled with divisions, and a Europe in which are planted eternal dragon's teeth of strife. They think they need this for their protection.

The British, frantic, and with some cause, over their own security, wish to enlarge their power, especially in western Europe, the Mediterranean, and Africa.

The American answer is the elimination of commercial rivals, and trade expansion. If everybody is getting something out of this war, the United States must certainly get something, too, and we can obviously not get empire nor extension of influence in Europe.

This is the world we live in and it's no good saying that if Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt sit down together, they will change the facts. Neither will the creation of a joint political staff change things. There already is a European advisory council in London.

Nothing can change things except a plan to make peace, with liberty and justice for all—and not a plan to expand power. The tremendous irony is that the free peoples of the world, at least, know it—and feel themselves helpless.

There are two conditions and only two, under which Germany, as an entity, can surrender.

The first is to make clear that a "Germany" will be left which is economically capable of life. A Germany that is deindustrialized, or loses its industrial provinces, or is overcrowded by the evacuation of ten to twenty million Germans into a truncated Reich, will be more incapable of sustaining life than Puerto Rico.

The second condition under which Germany could surrender—and I am using the words "can and could," not "will and wishes"—is she could become the ward of an already established province, or a region, operating along clear and established principles. She could be deprived of her sovereignty, and operated as a going concern for the world's and her own needs. She could thus become the first internationalized state—the first example of a state without sovereignty governed by international commissions combined with a democratic self-administration which would be responsible to those commissions. But the presumption then is that we intend to move in the direction of a vital world organization and a rational organization of the goods and services of this earth.

The surrender of a nation must mean the merging of one's identity into a larger identity but it cannot happen unless some larger identity exists.

A Germany conquered by four powers but not surrendered to any one thing, is a disaster. The problems we face now will not be easier of solution once our armies occupy all Germany. By that time they will be insoluble. Then one thing will just lead to another; nature will take its course; and its course will be terrible and astonishing.

I have written this and the foregoing articles with full responsibility, and full knowledge that I am crying against the wind. But I have also written them in the certainty that the wind will change, if we do not, and will blow back in our faces a hurricane of chaos.

Copyright, 1944, by Dorothy Thompson, Inc., and The Edmonton Bulletin and a taxpayer in Edmonton, I would heartily recommend that this board offer to the native sons of Edmonton who are in the army, a free homestead of their own choice, when and if they want to build a home here.

Quotation from a soldier's letter: "I am still happy to be doing my 'bit' but after all war is a sickening business. I wish often that people at home had some comprehension of what it is like. Possibly then, they would not anticipate most of all, returning to their 'normal warfare' business. Everywhere there are expressions of this anticipation—removal of controls, cutting of income and profits taxes, advantages in international trade. The spirit of aggression has not diminished, I feel, but has rather increased! I am sorry Edmonton inflated the price of land. It is a mistake policy I am sure. Housing is a big problem in Britain. They have a cabinet minister who devotes his entire time to it."

Our people need homes now. This is by far the greater and more urgent need of the hour, let us go forward without hesitation. It is our opportunity—let us make the best of it. There is no time to lose, Edmonton has a great future and we citizens and taxpayers expect our leaders to be men of vision.

We have confidence in our mayor and members of the council and we stand ready to back the mayor and council in any aggressive campaign of home building that will relieve the present serious shortage. This condition will grow steadily worse unless it is vigorously attacked and corrected now.

N. E. NIX.

10215 115th Street.

"Homes for our people is the most pressing problem the city has faced for many years."

I am sure every member of this board will agree with that statement. The shortage of homes for our people at this time, is surely a pressing and urgent problem.

When we are going to solve the problem? It is not enough to just talk about it and stop there. We can and must do something about it.

One of the first requirements, when we want to build a home, is to find a home site—a piece of ground—suitable and adequate for that purpose. It is a well known fact that our city owns a large number of good homesteads—vacant lots—most of them produce nothing but weeds, and the occasional "victory" garden. Generally speaking, city-owned vacant lots produce no revenue for the city.

Let us make a start to build homes upon these vacant lots.

May I point out just here, what I consider a very serious mistake on the part of the management—raising the price of vacant lots 25%.

This is not only unfair to prospective home builders, it is unfair to every business man in the city that comes under the price ceiling. No doubt you have the legal right to do it—you have set a bad example to the landlord and to the small merchant who would like to boost his prices but knows he will have to pay a fine if caught.

Why not correct this price raise error immediately? Here is a suggestion—do not stop at taking off the 25% raise. Cut the old price before the raise, in half, to bona fide home builders. Lots that were listed before the raise at $300 are now listed at $1200. Cut the price to $450 to the man and woman who really wants the lots for a home site, and will sign a contract to that effect and build a house within six months or a year.

There are many of Edmonton's native sons who are now overseas, fighting our battles—for you and me—many of them have married since enlistment, their wives and children are here in Edmonton, some are living with relatives under crowded conditions, some are living in shacks ready to back the mayor and council in any aggressive campaign of home building that will relieve the present serious shortage. This condition will grow steadily worse unless it is vigorously attacked and corrected now.

Now is the time for action. Let us not sabotage home building at this time by raising prices on vacant lots. As a home owner for 35 years

Editor Bulletin: With Britain carrying the heavy end of the load, as usual, and Mr. Churchill carrying a heavier burden than usual, it is depressing to read of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council's recent resolution condemning the British government's policy in Greece.

The United States and Russia protect their interests wherever they are without much criticism, but let Britain do likewise and the host of holy horror goes up.

Mr. Churchill's herculean efforts for Britain and the Empire in the face of discouragement, endless criticism and open hostility by dumb senators to the south of us, and "resolution-passing bodies" all around us, stand out as the brightest, most hopeful and positive force in the whole picture.

No one is questioning the right of this or any other organization to sound off, but it would have been more in the interests of unity had they filed their resolution in the wastepaper basket and given time a chance to vindicate Mr. Churchill once again.

Churchill

Editor, Bulletin: H. G. Wells merits the thanks of mankind for his comments concerning Winston Churchill. His concluding sentence: "If we do not end Winston, Winston will end us," is deserving of our most careful consideration.

Churchill has become brutally frank about his attitude towards the policy of self-determination. Regarding India: "I did not become Prime Minister of England to preside at the dismemberment of the British Empire," he now explains that he has mental reservations when he pretends to champion the right of any country to choose its own form of government.

In mustering the might of the world against the German monster, Churchill earned our undying gratitude; but that fact should not blind us to his failings. His prestige, eloquence and aggressiveness combined with his imperialist capitalist ideas equip him with some dangerous characteristics of a dictator.

It is becoming increasingly evident that Churchill's conception of world peace is based too much upon coercion rather than self-determination.

"Common Enemy"

Editor, Bulletin: Will you kindly allow me space to express what appears to be a much-needed warning to the wage earners and unionists? What has just happened in Greece and also happened a short time ago in Italy will certainly happen here when an effort is made to change this present system of patronage, graft and exploitation of the working class. We had a sample of this in Regina a few years ago and the present conscription crisis at Ottawa shows plainly that the government has no intention of carrying out the wishes of the majority but is playing entirely into the hands of the big money interests.

We will always have with us a fair percentage who are willing to sell their birthright for a few dollars of blood money and who can be hired by the money interests to shoot down any group who attempt to demand a square deal for the majority.

Union men, get together before it is too late. Quit quarrelling amongst yourselves and face the common enemy.

National Spokesman

Editor, Bulletin: If, says CCF's W. Irvine, "Canada had a national spokesman who would have let Churchill know months, or years ago, what Canada's position would be in such affairs as the Greek tragedy, he would not have informed parliament he had no time to consult the dominions". Well, the CCF has a national leader. Mr. Coldwell told the world in Sept. 1939, that "Canada should not send a single man to Britain's aid. Economic help to a reasonable amount, yes, but no conscription and not a single man overseas."

Recently the CCF "Commissioners" declared, in criticizing Churchill's jaunt—The situation in Greece and Italy shows a lack of support for democratic people's movements, and a readiness to impose, even by force, unpopular or discredited elements for reasons of power politics. Our masses are not working and dying to restore discredited monarchs to their thrones, and reactionary rulers to their pre-war power."

The CCF "masses" may be dying for "Comrades" Coldwell, "Lewis" and Scott, but last August proved that a free and enlightened people will not vote for them.

When Britain stood alone against the armed might of the Axis, Churchill, declared: "We shall not falter, or fail, we shall go on to the end."

The British people who faced the Nazi threat, and faced it alone for a year, and the man who still leads them, can be trusted to defend freedom today. They do not need the criticism or the advice of those who were opposed to any real war effort in defence of our liberties—until Russia was invaded in 1941.

Anti-British?

Editor, Bulletin: Too often we read effusions of anti-British feeling from persons signing, themselves as "Canadian" of this or several generations. As often we read deliberate lies or distortions. Recently "Canadian" stated that in England Canadians were regarded as foreigners.

That is not only a deliberate falsehood, but the signing as "Canadian" tends to stamp it as another effusion from one of the aliens (or descendants) who came to Canada holding tight to their antipathies, and who should be transferred back to the country of origin as a safeguard against these attempts to break down the natural fellowship which exists among all the Dominions of the British Commonwealth and Empire. The writer is evidently without knowledge of the real relationship of the Commonwealth. Otherwise, he or she would know that Britons not only recognize our relationship, but regard us with actual kindness as members of the same family.

How long are we to tolerate these insidious attempts to create an anti-British attitude between British countries? Not much longer we hope. There must be a change soon.

Major and Minor Notes

By John Oliver

NEXT Saturday, Jan. 13, the Women's Musical Club will resume regular meetings at the Masonic Temple, after a suspension of activities to permit members to take full advantage of Christmas and New Year's observances in the home. For the resumption of semi-monthly meetings, the club has elected to produce a musical play entitled "My Heart to Poland" based on the life and works of Chopin. It had suggested that as the opening recital of the season was at night, and its reception cordial, a second excursion into nocturnal entertainment might be held. However, the executive, after mature consideration of the situation, decided in favor of the afternoon gathering at the usual time. Therefore, next Saturday at 3 p.m. the Masonic Temple will see the club commence the second half of its season's schedule.

JOHN OLIVER

"My Heart to Poland" is in three scenes. The first depicts a reception on the eve of Chopin's departure from Poland to seek fame and fortune in the world at large. He is presented with an urn containing soil of his native country. The second scene is at the home of the Polish diplomat Wodzinski, and here Chopin is portrayed as being deeply in love with the daughter of the house, Marie. The third scene is at the home of George Sand and shows the great composer friendly, handsome and sick.

The cast has been drawn from students at University, Westglen and Seona High schools, who have had experience in dramatic and musical work. Elsie Muriel Mills will play the role of Chopin on the stage, while "in the pit" between scenes Betty Rymer will impersonate the composer at the piano, playing some of his best known and beloved works. James Spillies is director of the play, and those who have attended rehearsals are authority for the statement that the performance will equal many of the best programs put on at the musical club in recent years. Beryl Bisset will play the role of a maid, a dancer and George Sand's daughter.

Mrs. Ernest Meaden, manager of the Women's Musical Club, will open her box office at Heintzman's store in preparation for the appearance at the Empire theatre on Jan. 19 of Richard Crooks, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Association, assisted by Arthur LeBlanc, Canadian violinist. This is an extra concert, over and above the six regular events in the series of six. The seat sale is open to the public and regular subscribers who desire to go, must place their orders for seats early in order to obtain those they desire, and to be sure of getting them at all, as for this concert.

representative of all branches of music. Those taking part in the first concert are Lillian and Mary Louise Kester, pianists; Dolly Thachuk and Jackie Fowler, violinists, and Alice Shynko and Evelyn Crozier, vocalists.

The series is expected to attract many music lovers to the public library and both Mr. Goulay and Mr. Turner are confident that beneficial results will accrue from the series.

The Edmonton District Music festival will be held during the week of May 7 it was announced Saturday by H. G. Turner, secretary. It is expected the syllabus will be ready by the end of this month. Arthur Benjamin, distinguished composer, conductor, and teacher will adjudicate vocal and instrumental classes, while Mrs. Florence Aymong, of Toronto will be the adjudicator in elocution classes. While here Mrs. Aymong will conduct a master class in elocution. The annual large provincial festival will be held in Calgary during the week of May 21. Dr. J. F. Staton of Montreal will be one of the adjudicators. This syllabus is in the course of preparation and is expected to be ready in the near future. The committee in charge expects that there will be an entry list at least equal to the highest of previous festivals held at Calgary.

Clement Q. Williams who will appear here in two concerts on Feb. 1 and 2 under the auspices of the Women's Association of First Baptist Church is widely known in the Dominion through personal appearances and on radio broadcasts. He appeared here at the opening of the regular Women's Musical Club season two years ago. He commenced singing at an early age and when nine years old was making important concert appearances. He served with the Australian Light Horse in Egypt and Palestine during the Great War of 1914-1918. After the war he became a wool expert, but always he was in demand as a singer and it was not long before he adopted music as a profession. He has made many tours and his re-appearance here will be welcomed by many of his followers.

Shirley Neher, soprano will be the soloist at the second concert of the Edmonton Philharmonic Society, at the Empire theatre on Sunday, Feb. 4. She will sing the aria Love and Music These I Have Lived For from Puccini's "Tosca," and the old English "Cherry Ripe." In the meantime the Fratinis are carrying on intensive rehearsals with the orchestra for the regular program, which will feature Schubert's immortal "Unfinished" Symphony in B Minor. Miss Neher was the soloist at the initial concert given under Mr. Fratin's baton, at the Strand theatre last spring. One of this city's most popular and talented singers, she has appeared in the Edmonton Civic Opera Society's productions of "The New Moon," "Katinka," and "The Firefly."

Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society and her executive, have cast their votes in favor of "Rose-Marie" for production at the Empire theatre, about the middle of April, with actual dates yet to be decided. Mrs. Carmichael has called the first rehearsal for the Empire on Jan. 16. The executive now is wondering whether to present the operetta for three or four nights. One of the most successful light operas in the last quarter of a century "Rose-Marie" is assured of a cordial welcome, as its music has entered the "standard" repertoire, and its story, and scenic Canadian, not forgetting a chorus of Mounties, with a hard-boiled sergeant who has a soft spot in his heart for the petite heroine, Mrs. Carmichael expects to start casting immediately.

Starting tomorrow, at 3 p.m. the Edmonton Public Library, through Hugh C. Goulay, city librarian will sponsor a series of young artists' concerts over which H. G. Turner will exercise supervision. The motive behind the series is to give young artists an opportunity of appearing in public and gaining experience and confidence, and also to give music lovers a chance of hearing talent possessed by this city. The series is expected to continue every Sunday at 3 p.m. as long as the supply of talent lasts and attendance justifies continuation.

Programs will be varied and the type of artists to be chosen will be

See Signs "Big 3" Plan Meeting Soon

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Postponement of a two-day Conservative party conference originally scheduled to open Jan. 29 led yesterday to renewed speculation on the possibility of an early meeting between Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin. Mr. Churchill, as well as Foreign Secretary Eden, would normally participate in the party conference.

Take Tinned Milk From Ration List

Victory in West Seen by Newsman

VANCOUVER, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The situation on the western front at the present time parallels that in Italy a year ago and Allied soldiers will eventually overcome the enemy on the Rhine as they overcame him along the Tiber, Peter Stursberg, CBC war correspondent, told a service club meeting here yesterday.

Pte. Ernest A. (Smoky) Smith, VC, of New Westminster was also a guest at the meeting. Mr. Stursberg said aerial bombing of enemy-held cities had been a failure in his own experience. More than 1,000 tons of bombs had been dropped on Cassino.

"Before the bombing we held two-thirds of Cassino. After the bombing Cassino was missing but the Germans were not missing. Soon they held two-thirds of the town. Such bombing does not help the infantry and the rubble it creates handicaps the movement of tanks and mechanized support."

Dean of expressmen on the continent and one of the leading originators of the present day fast express service, Mr. Stout began his career in 1915 as an office boy with the United States Express Company in Havana, Ill.

In 1922 the late Sir William Van Horn asked Mr. Stout, then 24, to organize express operations on the C.P.R. lines in the west from Portage (now Kenora) to Oak Lake, Man. His headquarters were at Winnipeg. There he laid plans for future development of express service and in 1924 his headquarters were moved to Toronto where he was successively superintendent, general manager, vice-president, president and chairman of the board of the CP Express Company.

His widow, the former Hattie M. Burr of Bloomington whom he married in 1920, survives with one son and four daughters.

Father Testifies At Murder Trial

MELFORT, Sask., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Augustus Teale testified in provincial police court here yesterday at the preliminary hearing of the 18-year-old son, Ernest, who is charged with the murder of A. J. Vansickle, Naisberry, Sask., farmer, last Nov. 17.

Teale said his son left home Nov. 15 for Saskatoon to have a 22 calibre rifle repaired. He had six rounds of ammunition with him. An expended 22 calibre bullet was taken from a blood-stained blanket found in a car where Vansickle's body was found and has been filed as evidence.

Former Chairman U.K. Labor Party Is Killed by Truck

BRIGHTON, England, Jan. 6.—(CP)—James Walker, member of parliament and a former chairman of the Labor party, was killed last night by a hit-and-run army truck. The 60-year-old Walker was sent to college by the Iron and Steelworkers' Union, in which he later became a prominent leader. He entered the House of Commons in 1929. Told once that he would go blind if he did not give up his work, Walker learned Braille and continued his manifold activities.

Truce With Nazis Permits Passage Salt-Laden Train

NANTES, France, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A locomotive and 30 railcars of salt moved through the German lines of the St. Nazaire pocket and were delivered to the American forces stationed here. The shipment was repayment by French civilians in the pocket for 600 tons of food sent into the pocket for them by the Americans Dec. 30. A truce with the Germans permitted passage of the salt-laden train. The St. Nazaire pocket includes one of the biggest salt deposits in the world.

At Nijmegen, Holland Sergeants From Edmonton Help Interrogate Refugees

By MARGARET ECKER

NIJMEGEN, Holland, Jan. 7.—(CP)—The boy was a refugee. The muddy, tired looking people about him were refugees, Dutch farmers whose fields lay between the Maas river and the Neder Rhine and who had been brought here to safety when the Germans blew a dyke and flooded the land that was their homes.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—(CP)—How The Canadian Press brings news of Canada and of the world will be outlined in a 15-minute radio program Saturday night, based on interviews with key men on the staff of the Co-operative News Association.

The program, "This Week," is on the Trans-Canada network of the CBC at 5:45 p.m. MDT. Salvation Army Active in Holland Banned during the German occupation, the Salvation Army is again active in liberated parts of Holland, according to Aneta, official Netherlands news agency.

Officers and soldiers of the organization have resumed meetings, and are wearing their uniforms for the first time in four years. During Christmas week, collections for the poor were taken up on the streets, the people dropping coins and bills in Salvation Army pots taken out of hiding. Many of the organization's buildings confiscated by the Germans were cleaned and decorated with greenery and Christmas trees during the holiday.

Chaplains Unable Help in Holland

Chaplains in some prisoner of war camps in Germany have been unable "to do anything in the way of religious ministrations," Methodist Chaplain Albert Hullah, holder of the Military Cross, told reporters here.

Repatriated from Germany after four years' spent in internment camps, Chaplain Hullah reported that he had the greatest difficulty in getting chaplains out of officers' camps into men's camps where they were "both needed and sought."

One German commandant, he recalled, forbade him to preach because he refused to submit his sermons to censorship. Hullah overcame this difficulty by asking the German interpreter if, instead of preaching sermons, he could comment on Scripture Lessons. "No objection was raised," he said.

Church Campaign Proves Success

A "Go-to-Sunday School" campaign sponsored by local churches proved "highly successful" and will be repeated next fall, officials announced. Intended to combat juvenile delinquency, the drive was publicized through newspaper, radio, and other channels.

Thirteen churches reported an increase of 16 to 72 per cent in Sunday school attendance as a result of the campaign. Highest gains were shown by the United Lutheran church. Four churches, reporting on only two Sundays, had increases of from 28 to 58 per cent.

Churches Help Vital Work of Reconstruction

The department of relief and reconstruction of the World Council of Churches has now been set up in Geneva, Dr. A. Livingston Warnshuis, foreign counsellor of the Church Committee on Overseas Relief and Reconstruction, declared here. National church committees representative of all Protestant groups, he said, have also been set up in France and Belgium to handle relief appeals.

Dr. Warnshuis described the machinery for administering aid to war damaged churches of Europe at a press conference following his return from England, France and Switzerland where he studied problems of postwar relief and reconstruction on behalf of Protestant churches of America.

Other national church committees will be organized as continental Europe is liberated, Dr. Warnshuis said. Appeals for aid to individual churches will first be reviewed by national church committees and later by the World Council's Department of Relief and Reconstruction. This department will then assign responsibility for providing relief to countries having reconstruction funds at their disposal.

In this country appeals for aid will be received through the newly-established Commission on World Council Services of the American Committee of the World Council of Churches. British churches recently formed a Committee on Relief in Europe which will function in a similar manner. Sweden, Switzerland, and Canada are in process of organizing parallel committees.

Pastor Alphonse Koerchlin of Basel, Switzerland, is chairman of the World Council's Department of Relief and Reconstruction. The new department will eventually embrace the functions of the existing Central Bureau for European Inter-Church Aid, Dr. Warnshuis stated.

He said British churches do not look to America for aid in rebuilding their damaged and destroyed churches, but that on the continent, American church aid will be required to provide temporary buildings in which congregations can meet and later to help build permanent structures. Bibles and Christian literature must be made immediately available, and help in funds and personnel for carrying on the churches' social work programs is also needed.

Bishop to Consecrate Church At Special Services on Sunday

The Rt. Rev. W. F. Barfoot, Anglican bishop of Edmonton, will perform the act of consecration at a special Thanksgiving service to be held Sunday at Holy Trinity church, 8325 101 street.

The Rev. Canon W. M. Nainby is rector of the church. The service will mark the clearing of a mortgage on the church.

Mr. Justice Frank Ford, chancellor of the diocese, and the Ven. Archdeacon S. F. Tackaberry will attend the service.

The first Holy Trinity church was a frame structure built in 1893. The late Bishop H. A. Gray was the first rector. In 1907 a start was made on the permanent church and for six years the congregation worshipped in the basement of the church.

In 1913 under the leadership of the Rev. Canon C. Carruthers, the present church building was completed. It is a beautiful structure of tapestry brick.

A debt incurred at that time, which has been gradually reduced ever since, is now cleared. The congregation has used the church while reducing the debt.

Christian Science

"God" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science churches on Sunday. The Golden text is Isaiah 45:22. One of the Scriptural citations is "Ye shall walk after the Lord your God and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him" (Deuteronomy 10:1). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Ignorance of God is no longer the stepping-stone to faith. The only guarantee of obedience is a right apprehension of Him whom to know aright is Life eternal" (Pref. VII).

The Rev. Birdsall, formerly minister of the United Church at Fort Saskatchewan, was told of the fine standard of work set by his predecessors in the Central United church and was urged to cultivate the personal touch with members of his congregation.

About 250 members of the presbytery and the church attended the induction service of the new minister in Central United Church Friday night. The Rev. E. G. Turnbull presided at the service. Dr. MacKinnon conducted the scripture reading and the charge to the new minister, and the Rev. J. T. Stephens, of All People's Mission addressed the congregation.

Dr. MacKinnon told the new minister that personal contact with the members of his congregation would enrich his life as a minister of the church and give him a deeper understanding of humanity.

"In your pulpit you stand before people as the interpreter of the word of God," he said, "and not only of the word of God, but of the thought and mind of Him. Organization of thought is a most important thing today, for it is false and wrong thoughts that have resulted in chaos in the world today."

COMMENDS CONGREGATION

The Rev. Stephens, speaking to the congregation of the Central United Church, commended them for their good works and co-operation along their lines of endeavor. He said they were well known for their "large heartedness" and that this trait assured the Rev. Birdsall of a happy ministry.

The Rev. Turnbull conducted the induction service of the new minister before lay and clerical members of the United Church Presbytery.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

What Is Good Will?

RELIGIOUS leaders of all faiths have stressed the need for good will between men and nations as a bedrock of lasting peace. What do they mean by good will? Perhaps the simplest definition is that good will is the will to do good. In other words, a man of good will must recognize that he has precise obligations, not to wish good to others, but also, when opportunity presents, to contribute actively to the welfare of his neighbor.

In this war, we have seen entire peoples despoiled of their possessions; innocent victims exterminated in mass slaughter houses; workers taken from their families for forced labor in an enemy country; women dishonored; children left exposed to the ravages of hunger and disease. Our good will toward the oppressed was shown in the flood of protest against such inhumanities. But it was also expressed in our readiness to organize help for the suffering, to find shelter for the homeless, to feed and clothe the needy.

This is practical good will. Some day, the need for gigantic relief undertakings in war-ravaged countries will cease to exist. But does that mean that good will will be any less important in the world; that men will not need to be concerned with their neighbors in other lands? Emphatically, no. We must not forget that the only true security and contentment that nations and peoples can know must come from the spirit of good will—of brotherhood—animating men everywhere.

Good will is the common denominator of orderly and happy living. It is the keystone of sound family life; it strengthens the community; it gives vitality and vigor to the nation. In the eyes of God, the peoples of the earth—whatever their race, religion, or culture—are linked in one great family. It follows then that good will must be a bond to keep nations together. It is the only protection against the storms of mistrust and misunderstanding that sweep the world into chasms of darkness and suffering.

Postwar evangelism will be the theme of the 51st annual meeting of the Foreign Missions Conference at Toronto, Jan. 5-8. More than 500 Protestant missionaries and mission executives are expected to attend.

Delegates will meet in four working groups to consider relief and rehabilitation, new methods of expressing and extending the Christian gospel, and political, economic, and social trends in fields of mission enterprise.

A special session, to be held jointly with members of the Canadian Student Christian Movement, will study preparation of missionary personnel for post-war conditions.

AMONG SPEAKERS

Speakers and discussion leaders at the meeting will include Bishop James Chamberlain Baker, chairman of the International Missionary Council; Dr. John R. Mott, honorary chairman of the International Missionary Council; Dr. M. T. Rankin, executive secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention; Leslie B. At the morning service of dedication at 11 a.m., E. G. Hansell, M.P., will be the preacher. Mr. Hansell also will preach at the service at 7:30 p.m., when Keith Daniel will be soloist. At 8:45 p.m. there will be a social and fellowship hour and an inspection of the new building.

NEW PARLOR

To be dedicated will be a new church parlor, which will be used for the various meetings during the week, and for the young people's class and meeting on Sunday. It has an open fireplace, is painted a soft green trimmed with cream, and has a linoleum floor. Included is a new library and choir room in soft buff with tan trim and enclosed shelves on three sides. There are new front and rear entrances to the church and also to the basement.

INTERIOR RENOVATED

There is a renovated balcony and a completed re-decorated worship auditorium with new stained glass windows. The whole church has been beautified and the most careful workmanship has been used to make the building adequate for worship, work and service.

The building committee consists of the following: Clyde Craft, chairman; Carl Christenson, Dr. M. M. Dunworth and E. R. Nix. Mr. Christenson has been in charge of the building project. Many others have contributed volunteer labor.

The cathedral windows are given in memory of Ella S. Thompson by her three children.

COST OF PROJECT

The whole project has been estimated to cost $4,425. Of this amount the cash expense has been $2,725, the balance being donated material and labor. To meet this expense $1,000 cash has been received since Aug. 1. A bank loan of $1,250 has been taken out, while total of approximately $400 is needed immediately to pay pressing bills. Members hope this can be met by offerings Sunday.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

AFTER taking a gander at the New Year's 4-4 tie game at Calgary between RCAF Mustangs and Currie Army, Sub-Lt. Tommy Graham, home on furlough, has gone right overboard to declare that the hockey played down in the Maritime service circuit is superior to the variety shown by the two Alberta service sextets.

Could be that Tommy has something there at that. In any event he has seen a lot of hockey, both prior to and since joining the Navy, and in addition his "extra" duties as sports editor of the Halifax Herald-Mail have afforded an excellent opportunity to observe the boys in action in and around the Atlantic seaboard city.

Names of some of the players reeled off by Tommy leave little doubt as to the class of the Maritimers. For the Cornwallis team he listed "Red" Gilbert (Cleveland Barons) as goalie; Bob Goldham (Toronto Leafs) and Hughie Millar (Barons) as one pair of defence-men; and Bill Heindl, former Manitoba Junior, and Chuck Millman (Calgary) for the other regular duo; forwards included Gaye Stewart (Leafs), Bill Stefaniw (Winnipeg), George Gee, Leaf's Klukay and Scottie Mair.

RCAF Dartmouth roster also looks reasonably stout. Dan Stanley, son of "Barney" and former University of Alberta lineman, is a real smoothie with the puck asserts Tommy. And then he mentioned Eddie Bush (Detroit), Roy Conacher (Boston), Carl and Frank Ripley, Dave Kemp (Seattle), Bert Laprade (Port Arthur), Harvey Coombs (Cleveland), Jack Crumple and one, Art Upper.

The new pro-Maritimer also added that Harry Walker and Alex Watt are with Stadacona (Halifax) and two other Edmontonians, Gordie Watt and "Pug" Young were recent arrivals. That was all we learned about the Stadacona squad. A quick glance at the clock and the Navy "Sub-Louie" was off with an "I've got to meet that Calgary train, adieu." Tommy you'll recall is being married today to "Babs" Bottomley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Beckett of Edmonton.

Jug McSpaden and Sam Byrd Leading Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Defending champion Harold (Jug) McSpaden and the former New York baseball player, Sam Byrd, long since turned golf pro, shot one-under-par 70s Friday to tie for first round leadership of the 19th annual 72-hole Los Angeles open.

McSpaden, now registering a form Sanford, Me., coupled a 34 and 36 for the round. Byrd played the 7,000-yard Riviera course in 36-34.

The below-par feats were the only two racked up from a field of 132 pros and amateurs in the initial 18 holes of the $13,333 war bond event, concluding next Monday.

Eight topnotchers, including the tournament co-favorites, Sam Snead and Byron Nelson, finished in a tie at par 71. The others were Tony Penna, Chick Rutan, John Revolta, amateur Bruce McCormick, Claude Harmon and Ray Mangrum.

The United States open champion, Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y., fiddled through a round of 75. Denny Shute, twice PGA titlist and former British open champion, wallowed around for a 76 while two-time former United States open titlist Ralph Guldahl withdrew. Guldahl has failed to finish in the money in the last five tournaments.

Among the day's highlights were a hole-in-one, bagged by George McInerney of Huntington Park, Calif., and the blow-up of Leonard Ott of Denver, whose starting 81 was a far cry from such previous efforts as a trip-round 65 in the recent Richmond open.

The only woman entry, Mrs. George (Babe Didrikson) Zaharias, Los Angeles, put together 37-39 for a 76 that enabled her to top many of the male performers.

Agreement Only Discussed Baseball Committee Meets; Sets Date for NY Conference

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—10-member committee representing the American and National Baseball Leagues met here Friday to draft a new major league agreement but ostensibly concurred only in setting a date for another conference which will be held in New York Feb. 2.

Whatever sentiments were expressed by five officials from each league regarding a pact to replace the 24-year-old agreement under which the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis ruled baseball with an iron hand were not disclosed after a three-hour closed session.

Will Harridge, American League president, who with Ford Frick, National circuit head, sat in the owners' released a statement which said the agreement was merely "discussed generally" and will be whipped into formal shape for presentation to the committee Feb. 2.

At the meeting, which comes three days before a joint meeting of the leagues also to be held in New York, the committee will decide upon its final recommendations, Harridge said.

It had been expected the meeting would last two days and might produce informal discussion of a successor to Landis, who died at 78 as baseball's only commissioner. The committee had been authorized, however, only to draft an agreement.

Zivic Halts Young Philadelphia Negro Unbeaten in 31 Fights

Cagey Fritzie to Clever for Billy Arnold

Major Upset By Veteran Ring-Master

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Old Fritzie Zivic sprang a major boxing upset Friday night by handing youthful Billy Arnold, Philadelphia, the first defeat of his meteoric career in winning an eight-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

The 31-year-old Zivic, a 5-to-1 underdog in the betting, stunned a crowd of 16,923 by outsmarting the Philadelphia high school student who previously was unbeaten in 31 scraps. The gross gate was $57,576.

Pacing himself beautifully the cagey Zivic, former welterweight champion and veteran of 14 years in the ring, took everything Arnold threw and twice in the fifth and eighth rounds staggered his 18-year-old opponent with vicious lefts and rights.

Judge Marty Monroe voted five rounds for Zivic and three for Arnold. Referee Arthur Donovan gave four to Zivic, two to Arnold and called two even. Judge Jack Gordon gave each four rounds.

The Associated Press score card had Zivic winning five rounds to two with one even.

The 153-pound Zivic, on a 15-day furlough from his duties as an army corporal at a Texas camp, let the 144-pound Arnold force the fight all the way, but he made the Philly Negro look silly time and again by ducking and sliding away.

At times during the third round however, Arnold cornered the Pittsburgher against the ropes and hammered home lefts and rights that left Zivic's face a reddish glow when the bell rang.

In the fifth Zivic drove Arnold half way across the ring with a hard right and after Arnold rallied briefly in the sixth closed fast to take the last two rounds. He drew blood from Arnold's nose in the seventh and in the eighth had Arnold hanging on the ropes.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Junior hockey schedules at the Lakehead and in the prairie provinces are still in their initial stages but the league finalists, barring upsets which could only be classed as startling, are already apparent. The Western Canada senior picture remains clouded.

At the present time, Port Arthur Flyers, league champions last spring, appear certain to repeat in the Thunder Bay Junior League, while Winnipeg Monarchs top the six teams in the Manitoba junior loop by a wide margin. Moose Jan. Canucks have a secure grip on first place in the South Saskatchewan League and Canadians are undefeated in Edmonton junior competition.

At the Lakehead, Port Arthur Shipbuilders are the only senior team and are casting about for opposition to give them the form that carried them into the Allan Cup finals against Quebec Aces last spring.

Flyers dominate the junior league with 11 straight victories—nine in the pre-season Rory McLeod Memorial series and two in regular league games. Navy, with one win and a loss, appear to lack the power to stay with the Flyers.

AIR FORCE LEADING
Air Force have too much power for the other teams in the Manitoba Inter-Service Senior League and Navy are battling one point apart for second place. A trial senior series is being held in the province between Esquire-Red Wings and MacDonald Airports with a view to entering the Allan Cup champions. Esquires won both games played to date.

The South Division Monarchs dominate the Manitoba junior scene. Unbeaten so far, they outclass St. James Canadians and the improved Winnipeg Rangers. Esquire-Red Wings, unbeaten in the North Division, met defeat at the hands of Monarchs in both games of a two-game exhibition series for the Charlie Gardiner Memorial trophy. The Wings, however, have a good lead over St. Boniface and Canadian Ukrainian Athletic Club in the North Division.

CANUCKS HAVE 10 WINS
In the South Saskatchewan Junior League, Canucks have lost only once in 11 starts and hold a seven-point lead over Regina Commandos, only team still conceded a chance to gain the league leadership. Notre Dame Hounds and Regina Abbots are trailing.

In the north, Prince Albert and Saskatoon Varsity are tied for the league leadership, one point ahead of Navy. There is no senior league in the province.

Currie Army and Calgary RCAF Mustangs are neck-and-neck for leadership of the Alberta Senior Inter-Service League with Army holding a narrow two-point lead in the standings.

Canadians have won four starts in the Edmonton Junior League, while Edmonton Athletic Club have three wins and two losses and are still within reaching distance of Canadians, Maple Leafs and South Side are trailing.

Navy Wins 9-4

Cully Simon To Play With Hawks In Game Tonight

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Defenceman Cully Simon will join the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League in Montreal today, manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings said Friday.

Simon is one of three players the Red Wings traded to the Black Hawks earlier in the week for defencemen Earl Seibert. The others were forwards Don Grosso and Butch McDonald.

Asked about reports Simon refused to report to Hawks, Adams said: "Cully will join the Black Hawks in Montreal tomorrow. He's been spending a day or two at Brockville tonight. Then he'll go on to Montreal."

Adams was enthusiastic about Seibert's play in his first start with Detroit against New York Rangers in New York Thursday night. Of tonight's game with the Toronto Maple Leafs he only said "we'll be in there plugging."

Black Hawks play Montreal Canadiens in Montreal tonight.

"Tex" Wheeler Counts 18

Namoo and Division Win Service Basketball Tilts

Alaskan Division Headquarters took over the leadership and U.S. Namoo Air Base moved right up behind them into a tie for second place with the idle Clippers Friday night by winning in their respective halves of the Inter-Service Basketball League doubleheader at NWAC.

Namoo won from a fighting U.S. Signals' team 54-34 in a hard fought opener and then the Division cagers came along to beat the Canadian Airmen from Northwest Air Command 52-26 in a game that saw only the score on one-sided. Last night's attraction was the first of the second half schedule.

Namoo were out in full force and outstanding performances by "Tex" Wheeler, Lester Cheek and Clide Frederickson gave them a well earned victory.

Wheeler, the guy who makes scoring a basket look like next to the easiest thing in the world, was high point-getter with 18, a noticeable effort in any league. Last night's 18, only three off the season's record held by Mike Milner, boosted Tex's total to 83 in seven games.

Heading the list of steady working Signal scorers was Henches, who sank seven field baskets for 14 points.

The winners took the lead soon after the starting whistle and went on to increase their margin right down to the final minute. They out-scored the Signallers 12-8 in the first quarter and then dropped in 16 to the losers' 10 in the second to boost their lead to 10 as the half time score read 28-18.

Continuing their consistent play, the Namoo cagers added 13 while holding the opposition to eight in the third to hold a 41-26 edge entering the home stretch. They then out-scored Signals 13-8 in the final stanza to win by a decisive score.

LINEUPS
Namoo Air Base: Wheeler (18), Ware, Cheek (10), Sanderfur (7), Roy, Loy (9), Frederickson (10), Crack, Kerr, Winger, Helmus, Total, 54.

U.S. Signals: Henches (14), Junker (6), Guthrie (2), Ferrari (4), Blazy (2), Nelson (4), Spradling (2), Total, 34.

Officials—Heifner and Caldwell; scorer—Westen Berger.

Bob Weis and Rex Williams, a pair of forwards who work together on some really "smooth" plays, paced the Alaskan Division Headquarters club to their 52-26 victory over NWAC last night, which moved the club out in front of the service basketball pack.

This combination, the tall and short of the Division team, helped each other to 30 points, little Weis counting 16 and towering Rex Williams coming through with 14.

The out-scored, but not out-classed Canadian airmen had no individual star, but were led by Murray, Pell who counted nine. The NWAC club was minus some of its regulars and was forced to use the same five after the first two minutes when "Bud" d'Easum was forced out with a minor injury.

As did the Namoo hoopers in their win, the Headquarters team out-scored the opposition in every canto. The Alaskans took a nice 16-5 lead in the first session and then earned a 26-10 margin at the half time breather by marking up 10 to the losers' five.

The third quarter stepped up quite a bit compared with the other two and Division counted 16 and NWAC came up with nine, the most they collected in any one quarter.

The winners then coasted to victory by adding 10 to the Canadians' seven in the last stanza.

LINEUPS
NWAC: Tadsion (5), Gassner (6), Somher (1), Pell (9), d'Easum, Ballanger (5), Total, 26.

Alaskan Division: Welch (9), Weis (16), Farnham (6), Auger (3), Williams (14), Weiger, Barton (2), Achell, Miller, Medeiros (2), Constantine, Total, 54.

Officials—Heifner and Caldwell; scorer—Ken Worley.

"Ha! Ha! ... you were right! It WAS underneath my desk blotter all the while!"

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Failure of self-centered sports leaders to co-operate and have a national co-ordinator appointed, following Pearl Harbor, was advanced Friday as a major reason for the bleak uncertainty now beclouding the sports future.

Bigwigs of baseball, racing, boxing and amateur athletics were said to have feared that a national co-ordinator might curtail their personal powers—might dim their respective spotlights. They couldn't see the mountain for the mole hills.

As a result, sportsmen themselves pointed out, there has been no spokesman at Washington to represent the vast sports industry—in which millions of dollars are invested—which contributes to the entertainment of millions—and which receives more publicity annually than any other American industry.

NEEDED GO BETWEEN

THERE HAS been no spokesman at Washington to present war-burdened officials with facts regarding the general sports set-up or regarding specific branches, no spokesman to acquaint barred officials with sports contributions—or lack of contributions—to the war effort, no representative empowered to crack down on selfish, short-sighted individuals, whose greedy operations threatened the wartime welfare of an entire sport—like racing. There has been no definite liaison or link between sports and the government.

Thus, those who have begun to think about the matter, asserted lack of a national co-ordinator has prevented sports in general, and specific brands, from being given a definite wartime status. No one in sport ever claimed that their competitive entertainments were "essential" to the war effort, but virtually all felt that sports contributed in some degree to civilian and service morale.

That degree apparently never has been evaluated—if it actually exists. Hence, sports—the known quantity—the "X" of wartime effort—have been tolerated by the government. At times the perplexed officials at Washington seemed to regard sports as white swans of morale; but recently they seemed to view them as ugly ducklings.

OPINIONS DIVIDED

AT INTERVALS since Pearl Harbor, various columnists have warned of the necessity of a sports co-ordinator. Ford Frick, president of the National League, was understood to favor such an appointment. Certain prominent, like Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, became interested. But the late commissioner Landis, for one, was vigorously opposed to a co-ordinator. Czar

Landis would brook no possible encroachments on his power. Abe Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, favored a co-ordinator; but not the chairman of various state commissions. The Amateur Athletic Union was dead set against such an appointment. And so it went, with nothing done.

Now the situation is changed. Most brass hats in sports would welcome the appointment of a co-ordinator for the duration.

Sunland Takes Over Lead In EAC Pee-Wee Hockey

The Sunland team moved to the top of the Edmonton Athletic Club Pee Wee Hockey League Friday night by edging out Kraft 3-2 in the third game of an exciting triple-header at the Arena. Smithblits turned back Allards (Leekies) 3-1 and Arrows shut out Fairways 3-0 in the other two fast contests.

The Sunland Blizzards were led to their second straight victory by D. Perry, who tallied the club's three goals within 12 minutes and five seconds during the third canto. He was helped by A. Bryant, O. Stogryn and E. Duncan in his scoring effort, the best to date in the circuit.

Harvey Gray and Bob Jrien netted the two Kraft goals, which moved them out in front on each occasion. Bob got the only goal of the first period and then, with no scoring in the second, Perry tied it up on an assist from Bryant early in the third. Gray put the Kraft club ahead again less than a minute later, but Perry came back to drive home two in a row and win the game for Sunland.

RICHARD MUNROE OUTSTANDING IN GOAL

Outstanding goaltending by Richard Munroe inspired Smith-

blits to their 3-1 triumph over Allards in last night's curtain raiser. The Allards carried the play to Smithblits most of the way, but found the little goalie unbeatable on every occasion except one.

We, too, hope that a co-ordinator will be appointed—in a hurry. And we hope it's not too late.

blits to their 3-1 triumph over Allards in last night's curtain raiser. The Allards carried the play to Smithblits most of the way, but found the little goalie unbeatable on every occasion except one.

Bud Loftus led the winners attack, netting one unassisted goal and then tallying another in the third. Bob Sabourin bagged the other Smithblit counter while lone Allard goal was scored by Edwin Abrassart on a play with Elmer Irwin.

Loftus' first tally in the initial canto opened the scoring to give Smithblit the lead. Allards came back to deadlock the counting in the second session, but the winners banged in two more in the final period to win out.

LONG, NOON, THOMAS GIVE ARROWS VICTORY

With Doug Long, Bud Noon and Eldor Thomas doing the scoring, Arrows gained a 3-0 shutout over Fairways in the second game last night. Honors of registering the first shutout of the season in the EAC Pee Wee Hockey League went to Don Roberts.

The two clubs battled without any scoring in the first period, but Eldor Thomas took a neat pass from Doug Long with less than six minutes to go in the second frame to put Arrows ahead.

Bud Noon completed a play with Jack Lee and Thomas in the first minute of the third period to increase Arrows' lead, and then Long went through all alone a minute later to put the clincher on the game.

The game was hard fought and a trifle rough, referee Cecil Goldstick, who was injured in the third contest, but came back to finish, handing out a total of 11 penalties.

Trans-America Pro Grid Loop All Set To Go

DALLAS, Jan. 6. — (AP)—The Trans-America Professional Football League is a settled fact and already has six cities enrolled, John F. (Chick) Meehan, head of the new circuit, said Friday.

Meehan announced before departing for Houston to confer with sports leaders there regarding a possible franchise in the league that Dallas, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Brooklyn had completed arrangements and met all requirements for berths.

"There is nothing tentative about our set-up," the former Syracuse Manhattan and New York City University coach said. "These six cities have already been granted franchises in which to play and are eager to start. Two other cities—Denver and Houston—may be added before the league begins operations." He added that Denver and Houston had reported prospects good for entering the loop.

By SYD THOMAS.

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Embarrassing! A communique received by this department from the Winnipeg Tribune staff says that it is their proud boast that their Tony Allan, is the only Canadian sports editor "erudite enough to understand those tough cartoons in Punch," the British Humor Magazine.

Mr. Allan, it seems, passed a "Punch cartoon appreciation test" recently by decoding the "lamp-boys" cartoon in the Nov. 29 issue, and is willing to explain it to anyone who is stumped by it. Fortunately, we had not seen that particular cartoon, and now we are afraid to look at it for fear of embarrassing consequences. However, it's a golden opportunity for sports editors across the country to take a chance.

HERE AND THERE

The Ki-Toule, alias Rosario Joannette of Valleyfield in the inter-provincial hockey league, is much in the news these days. Ki-Toule, who is being considered by Montreal Canadiens, is touted as one of the best stickhandlers in the game today. . . . Phil-L. Art Ross, Jr., son of Boston Bruins' mentor, has been posted to Ottawa with the RCAF.

The aforementioned Tony (Punch) Allan of the Winnipeg Tribune says it is probably just as well United States authorities moved to prevent transportation of horses to Canadian tracks. If the gee-gees could come here freely, that would create quite a boom in racing this side of the border, and might cause no end of ill feeling among the Americans who are deprived of their own pastime.

The youthful Howie Morenz is showing plenty of class in Montreal, but there is no indication yet he will ever match his father's brilliance. Competent judges, however, say he is sure NHL material at some future time.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Opposites Are Bad Bet For Marriage Business

Qualities That Draw Two People Together Often Drives Them Apart; Opposites Offer an Infatuation Which Doesn't Last

One of the curious things about marriage is that the law of the attraction of opposites works before marriage, but fails to function after marriage, and that the very qualities that drew a man and woman together so often drive them apart.

That is the sardonic trick that Mother Nature plays on humanity. For she is not concerned with the happiness of the individual. She is interested only in keeping the race on an even keel, and so in order that we may not all be giants or pygmies, or morose or high-brows, she makes big men fall in love with little girls, and the beautiful but dumb maidens have an irresistible charm for college professors. And vice versa.

THE UNKNOWN

It is this simple fact that both men and women are lured by the unknown in each other into marriage that is at the bottom of so much domestic infelicity. It is what makes rich old Grandpas marry little gold-diggers young enough to be their granddaughters. That makes staid, solid business men with a domestic complex, marry flighty little Janes, who haven't an idea in their heads or a desire in their souls for anything but fine clothes and night clubs.

It is what makes girls turn down fine young men who would make them good husbands, for drunkards and ne'er-do-wells, they will have to work to support, and that makes handsome providers have a peculiarly hypnotic appeal for pious girls, who first pray for them and then marry them.

But the fascination of being married to someone whose difference from oneself is so great, is playing a new personality isn't the happy pastime one expected it to be. It is too full of difficulties. It has too many quibbles of disposition that have to be negotiated, too many mountains of strange ways and opinions and customs to be surmounted. And it makes one long for the old familiar road and the kind of husbands and wives to which they were accustomed.

NOT HAPPINESS

Of course, it may be good for our own souls and for our offspring for us to marry people who are opposites instead of our likes, but it does not make for peace and happiness in the household. For it takes more strength of character than many of us possess to be able to see our mates' points of view and concede them the right to their own opinions, and to grant them any personal liberty.

We all, for instance, think that a thing is right or wrong according to whether we like to do it or not. Whether a woman complains of being a golf widow, or whether she can spend a pleasant hour discussing a game with her husband, depends upon whether she plays herself or not. Whether a woman considers herself a neglected wife because her husband reads the papers or goes out at night, instead of talking to her all the evening, depends upon whether she likes to read or not. Whether a man lambasts his wife for gadding and raises ructions over her buying a new dress depends upon whether he likes to step out of an evening and takes pride in her appearance.

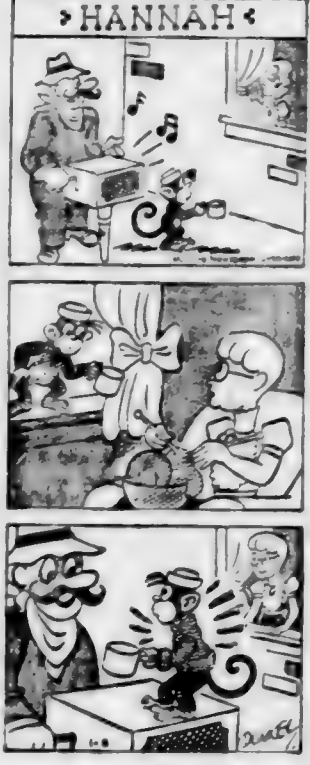

So it all boils down to the secret of being happy through marriage, is like marrying your like. The people we ought to marry are those who are reflections of ourselves.

Minute Make-Ups

Adopt the arm movements of tennis for your Minute Exercise! Use the forehand and backhand strokes, the serve. Use both hands alternately. Swimming exercises too, can be done wherever you are and whenever you can. And proper breathing and posture will make your exercises really work.

IT IS NOT LIKELY THAT PEARY EVER REACHED THE NORTH POLE

Dr. Henshaw Ward, of Yale, has made an exhaustive study of the evidence supporting Peary's claim for reaching the North Pole in 1909, and concluded that the story "is so highly improbable that our acceptance of it is absurd." He points out that the speed necessary for Peary to have reached the Pole in the wild dash after he left his exploring party was so great as to be impossible, and would have to be nearly double that made while he was with his party. It would have to have been twenty-eight miles per day even if he went in a straight line, which was of course, not possible. Further, Peary had no compass accurate enough to tell him his position with certainty.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PATIENTS SHOULD DEMAND ASEPSIS

Patient recently delivered in a snooty hospital where the husband is not permitted to remain with his wife during delivery—of course not—happened to have some expert knowledge of surgical asepsis. So when the nurse attending her dropped a pad dressing on the floor, picked it up and was about to apply it, the patient cried out in dismay and demanded a sterile dressing. The nurse thereupon adopted a characteristically surly demeanor—and what is worse, she got away with it, thanks to the wretched standards in the hospital. When the patient reported the incident to her physician the doctor, being subservient to the gang running the hospital, merely tried to laugh it off as of no significance, and laughed himself out of the further patronage of the patient's family.

Such atrocious offences against the safety of the patient are committed many times a day in hospitals of shady character. In the office of physicians, specialists and dentists, and it is high time that the public become familiar with the principles of asepsis so that these dangerous doctors, surgeons, specialists, dentists and nurses may be compelled to give patients a break.

A patient in the chair of a dentist waited while the dentist answered the telephone, jingled keys, etc. in his pocket, handled things on his desk, wrote down a memorandum, and then attempted to continue working in the patient's mouth without washing his hands. The patient properly protested. The tooth mechanic, for of course he was nothing else, thereupon waxed sarcastic.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief, and written in ink. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady 285 El Camino South, Beverly Hills, Calif.)

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Almost every young mother is faced, shortly after she takes over the care of her new baby, with situations for which the books give her no specific advice, if the baby always acted exactly as he is expected to act, there would be no problems. But he may sleep beyond his regular feeding period. He may wake up before it. Then, oh then, what is she to do?

Most babies in hospitals are started on a regular routine. They are bathed at certain hours, sleep, or have the opportunity to sleep, all the rest of the time, unless engaged in the vital business of taking nourishment.

If the baby is sleeping soundly when feeding time arrives, let him alone. A sleepy baby is a poor feeder, at best. He may eat enough to satisfy the parent that he has been fed and then be awake in an hour or so waiting for more. If he is wide awake when he is fed, he is earnest about filling himself up and then when he falls asleep until close to the next feeding period.

If the baby awakens regularly one hour or so before a feeding, then it is pretty safe to estimate that he is not getting enough nourishment. If he is breast-fed, the feeding may be supplemented by a bottled formula given immediately after he finishes nursing—never between nursings.

If he is bottle-fed then call the doctor's attention to his behavior. He'll do something about the formula so that it keeps the baby satisfied for the usual number of hours between feedings.

During the night hours they should be undisturbed. The tiny baby tends to wake twice at night for feedings. But these hours should not be inflexible, as they would be if baby awakens at ten and two for feedings.

WINTER FUN

To be colored with paints or crayons. (Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

The sky is light BLUE and of course the snow-covered ground is snowy white except where there are ridges and lumps that cast light BLUE shadows. Susie May, her YELLOW curls flying beneath her warm RED turtleneck cap is one house, and BROWN-haired Teddy is the other. Susie May has a RED scarf to match her cap. Her coat and leggings are BROWN. Teddy's cap and coat are dark GREEN. He has TAN, or BROWN, and YELLOW trousers, leggings and shoes. His mittens are RED.

"Giddap! Giddap!" cries little BROWN-haired Billy shaking his long RED reins, and the little RED and YELLOW sled speeds along. Billy wears a light BLUE knitted suit, his cap matches it, but his collar cuffs and the ball on his cap are white, woolly stuff. His mittens are BLUE and the pillow behind him is white.

There's Fushy-May's house on the hill. It has a RED brick chimney trimmed with snow and the roof is covered with snow, but you can see that the house is BROWN with YELLOW window frames, porch and door even though the snow has piled high on everything.

There are two GREEN fir trees, but they have a blanket of white snow on the side furthest away from the house.

The border of this picture can be YELLOW, and the lettering light PURPLE.

Red Cross Girls Find Homes

Four "Unwanted" Because of Duties

For Others but Not Themselves

Everyone is familiar with the old saying that a shoe-maker's children are usually in need of shoes.

Four attractive recreation workers stationed at the American Red cross centre in Edmonton have a distinct feeling of kinship to the legendary cobbler's poorly shod progeny.

One of the many services performed almost daily for servicemen at the centre here is hunting accommodation for men stationed in Edmonton.

NO ACCOMMODATION

In this difficult task in wartime crowded Edmonton the Red Cross girls have been highly successful, so it's bitter irony indeed that they are themselves unable to find suitable accommodation.

Charming, blonde Jane Reed of Vineland, New Jersey, explained the plight of the "unwanted living" to The Bulletin.

"We are unable to obtain living quarters at any U.S. military base here because of the rule governing Red Cross personnel not serving on an actual base. Our recreation centre is in downtown Edmonton. We would be tickled pink to obtain quarters in barracks but are stymied by the regulations.

"Our work is nearly all at night, so we are seldom looked upon as desirable boarders or roomers by landlords. Coming in at 1 a.m. each morning disturbs a household and to take a bath causes real trouble at that hour. We don't really blame landlords but what can we do?"

HOUSE FOR FOUR

"What we need is a house or an apartment for four, but try and find one.

One of the girls has been asked to move eight times in just two months because of her hours. Another has moved a score of times in a year.

"When units at the Jesuit College were under the control of the U.S. Army for housing civilian employees here there was no problem, but we'll just have to do something about this thing and soon," Miss Reed said.

Other members of the near-homeless quartet are Norma Dotson, Decatur, Ill.; W. H. Hume, Chicago; and Teno Gloeckler, Bakersfield, Calif.

These four hardworking Red Cross feminine GIs need a home and the time is now.

Assist Veterans Entering Varsity

The University of Alberta, along with all other Canadian universities, will open its doors to returned servicemen three times yearly, Dr. Robert Newton, president, said here Saturday.

Permitting veterans to enter the institution according to this plan will not alter existing courses of study, Dr. Newton added. It will mean that veterans will be able to enter classes after civilian enrollment has ceased for the year.

The veterans' enrollment system was adopted by universities following a conference of officials held some time ago.

In Edmonton, refresher courses to fit returned men's education standard to university entrance requirements have been started in the old Tech school, under joint supervision of the department of education and the university.

As students graduate from these courses they proceed on to university or a trade school on a territorial basis instead of being compelled to take needed subjects as regular high or night school courses before entering the senior institution.

City Visitor

Robert England, Vancouver, arrived in Edmonton Saturday in connection with matters pertaining to the department of Veterans' Affairs. He is a guest at the MacDonald hotel. Mr. England formerly was connected with the CNR colonization department.

Montgomery May Yet Become Deputy Chief

By JAMES MCGLINCY

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—(BUP)—Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, new commander of all British and American forces north of the Ardennes bulge, may yet be named deputy supreme commander for the whole western front with jurisdiction over ground forces.

(President Roosevelt at his press conference yesterday said the shift in command on the western front did not mean that Montgomery necessarily would be named to such a post, but did not comment on the possibility of a future appointment.)

It is impossible to say at present whether the shifting of the American First and Ninth armies to the British 21st Army Group under Montgomery will be permanent, or what the command situation will be once the Ardennes bulge has been ironed out.

Neither can the suggestion that Montgomery may be given command of all ground forces in the west, either because of criticism of the previous command situation or to ease the burden on supreme commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, be written off entirely.

DUTIES INCREASE

Eisenhower's administrative duties have increased in liberated countries have grown enormously in the past few months, competing for attention with his military work.

There was no tendency on the part of best-informed unofficial observers at supreme headquarters to consider the changes in command as reflecting blame for the success of the German counter-offensive.

G-2, (intelligence) which underestimated the enemy's strength was immediately under Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges, commander of the First Army, and its reports were studied by the high command. Hodges still commands the First Army.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army Group, was reduced from three armies to one because the Ardennes salient cut across his army group and its communications. It was excommunicated.

Pickets Cheer Washington Order to Seize Mail Order Plants

Strikers and sympathizers, who discontinued picketing the doors of Montgomery Ward and Co.'s Detroit store when the U.S. war department seized the property, celebrate at union headquarters. Recently, 70-year-old Montgomery Ward chairman, Sewel L. Avery, said the army would have to throw him out or "fence" him out.

Union member Rose Dankowicz discarded picket signs at headquarters of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees' union, C.I.O., at Chicago. The U.S. war department has seized all seven units of the huge mail order company. It tossed Mr. Avery out of office last spring, may do it again. Avery has repeatedly ignored war labor board orders.

B.C.'s "Tugboat Annie" Leaves Helm For Medical Course

Famous along the Fraser river and B.C. coast as a navigator, Eve Forrest operated a logging tug-boat for over six years. Here, for old time's sake, she tries the helm of a bay boat. It's a long cry from the logging towns of the coast to this laboratory where Eve is working. Only woman master mariner in British Columbia, she is realizing a lifetime's ambition by studying medicine at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario.

Ready for a bed after a tough day's work are Kitty Archibald, Lilian Danson, Mary Fisher and Margaret Younger, four of the telephone operators who stayed down town in Toronto during the recent snow storm to make sure they would be on the job next day. They slept on army cots in an office building.

No "Dude" Is Lynn

Lynn Baggett, despite her glamorous movie outfit, is no dude. She's the real thing, brought up on a Texas ranch. Lynn won herself a film contract when a Hollywood scout spotted her on a Dallas, Texas, street and signed her up for a screen test.

"Loneliest Soldier" Isn't Lonely Any More

The loneliest soldier in California, a title won by Cpl. Robert C. Wilson of Titusville, Pa., because he hasn't heard from his fiancee for 11 months, is welcomed to Hollywood by starlets Lynn Baggett, Dolores Moran and Joan Winfield.

New Year's Resolutions: Everybody Makes 'Em, But Who Keeps 'Em

One man who has a very admirable resolution for the New Year is this returned veteran who says he'll "Keep smiling"

To get to work on time is one easy resolution and this little guy does as though she intends to keep it. A good idea, even if just to start the boss off right.

Has 27 Nazi Scalps

L.Cpl. M. Pelletier of Montreal is a crack shot of the sniping section of the famous Royal 22nd Regiment, the "Van Doos," of Quebec City. Pelletier has no less than 27 enemy troops to his credit.

These men of a Canadian regiment helped to take this house which was occupied by the Germans. Lying behind them is a dead German officer who used the house as his headquarters. The engagement took place when the Canadians were establishing a bridgehead across the Lamone river in

Sees Drastic Changes "Wop" May Again Flies Over North Sky-Tracks

The hard days of aerial pioneering in Canada's great northland, when daring early birds of the sky-trails flew flimsy kites without navigation aids to nothing resembling landing fields, are definitely over. The airman's north of even six years ago is gone forever.

It was with a trace of sadness in his voice that Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, OBE, DFC, made the foregoing observations Saturday following completion of his first lengthy tour of northland mining centres and trading posts after an absence of nearly six years.

Capt. May is back again with CP Air Lines as superintendent of the Mackenzie division of the company, following several years on leave as manager of units of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, which included No. 3 Air Observers School here.

"Wop" May knows the aerial northland as few other men.

Radio and landing fields brought the most drastic changes to the airman's northland in the last six years, Capt. May states. In addition the country has become greatly mechanized, due largely to the great American "invasion."

Airports where landing wheels can be used are making a great difference in the northland transportation picture. Aklavik and other Arctic posts are getting faster service with few lapses at any season of the year now.

It was like coming back home to Capt. "Wop" May when he headed north this fall. More than 20 years of his life were spent along the aerial pathways of the far north.

"The pioneer days are over for north flying," he said, "and I really loved pioneering," he sighed.

Points visited for the first time in six years by Capt. May recently are Yellowknife, Fort Rae, Port Radium and Norman Wells.

advice on the subject of readjustment. Two former servicemen should give a lot of thought to the kind of work he wants to do.

"He should try his best to get the kind of work he likes, because this will help him immensely in his battle to readjust himself to civilian ways. I feel that much of the difficulty concerning readjustment is the result of ex-servicemen being placed at work for which they are not suited and in which they have no interest. I am keenly interested in the work I am doing and hope to become a full-fledged electrician," he commented.

Except for some curve work when he was in school, the youth-ful veterans living his first real work as a seaman.

When he enlisted in the first R.C.M. on September 5, 1939, he was only 18. His youth delayed his departure for overseas until September 1940.

Later he transferred to the British Commando forces and saw considerable service of which he is anxious to give details for security reasons.

Illness brought on by this service brought him home to Canada in July of 1944 and his honorable discharge a few weeks later.

His basic work, less than a month old when he left Canada, was now a complete package to the re-reading of the war.

But in his opinion, Walter Ginter, a former R.C.M. "Buddy" Ginter of 10432 123 street, a veteran of the First Great War, who has a "Buddy" in the Canadian Forces, is a veteran of the war.

A second son of the wounded First Great War veteran, telephone 18, R. D. Ginter, 21, is now home on leave from service in the Royal Canadian Navy.

AT SCHOOLS HERE

Young Walter attended Alex Taylor public school and Jesuit College before enlisting.

His fellowworkers in the public works department are "grand to him" Ginter states.

His supervisor, W. D. Lee has a substantial understanding of the problems of a returned serviceman, and the results of his work in the Canadian Navy.

Britain's Farm Production Increased 70 Pct. in 1944

By DOUGLAS GREEN

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Through a drastic change in the farming system, involving intensive mechanization, Britain increased her agricultural production by 70 per cent last year, R. S. Hudson, British minister of agriculture, said yesterday in an interview.

"Cocktails" Fatal To Three Seamen

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The crew of a British freighter, anchored within hailing distance of New York but unable to get ashore on New Year's eve, organized a party with cocktails composed of an anti-freeze compound, turpentine, lemon juice and molasses.

Twenty-four hours later the delayed secondary action of the poison laid low 13 of the men, and three of them subsequently died, the British consulate general disclosed yesterday.

Eight have fully recovered and are back aboard ship, and the remaining two were reported out of danger.

After Dunkerque there appeared to be a danger that supplies would be cut off. British farmers concentrated on growing bulky crops. Wheat acreage was increased from 1,750,000 before the war to 3,250,000 acres last year.

Acreages of potatoes, barley and oats were doubled. Pig and poultry production was reduced as it was anticipated Canada would supply high-energy foods.

85,000 WORKERS LOST

Mr. Hudson said Britain had lost about 85,000 agricultural workers to the forces and industry. In 1940 agricultural workers were "frozen" to their jobs, and the women's land army formed. The army now is about 80,000 strong.

Before the war the bulk of the British wheat crop was fed to poultry. Mr. Hudson said farmers have been informed that everything they grow will be taken until 1947, and that prices for milk will not drop below present rates.

Beginning in February, prices for other products will be fixed to enable farmers to plan production programs ahead. In 13 farming areas independent economists will analyze data on costs to enable production costs to be established on an agreed basis as between the agricultural ministry and the farmers.

Mr. Hudson said approximately 7,000 farmers have been dispossessed for bad husbandry after their methods were investigated by county council agricultural committees, executive committees and departmental officials. Of those dispossessed, two-thirds owned their farms.

DIVING DUNCE

The TEENIE WEEENIES

CUT ME OUT

It was cold and frosty outside, and most of the Teenie Weenies were content to keep close to the Teenie Weenie fireplace. It was tiresome for the Dunce, for he liked to be busy. He teased the Lady of Fashion until that little person threatened to jab him with the Teenie Weenie darning needle with which she was mending Teenie Weenie stockings. The Dunce strolled out into the Teenie Weenie kitchen, where the Cook and Gogo were finishing with the luncheon dishes. He raised the cover and looked into the thimble where the Cook kept his cookies.

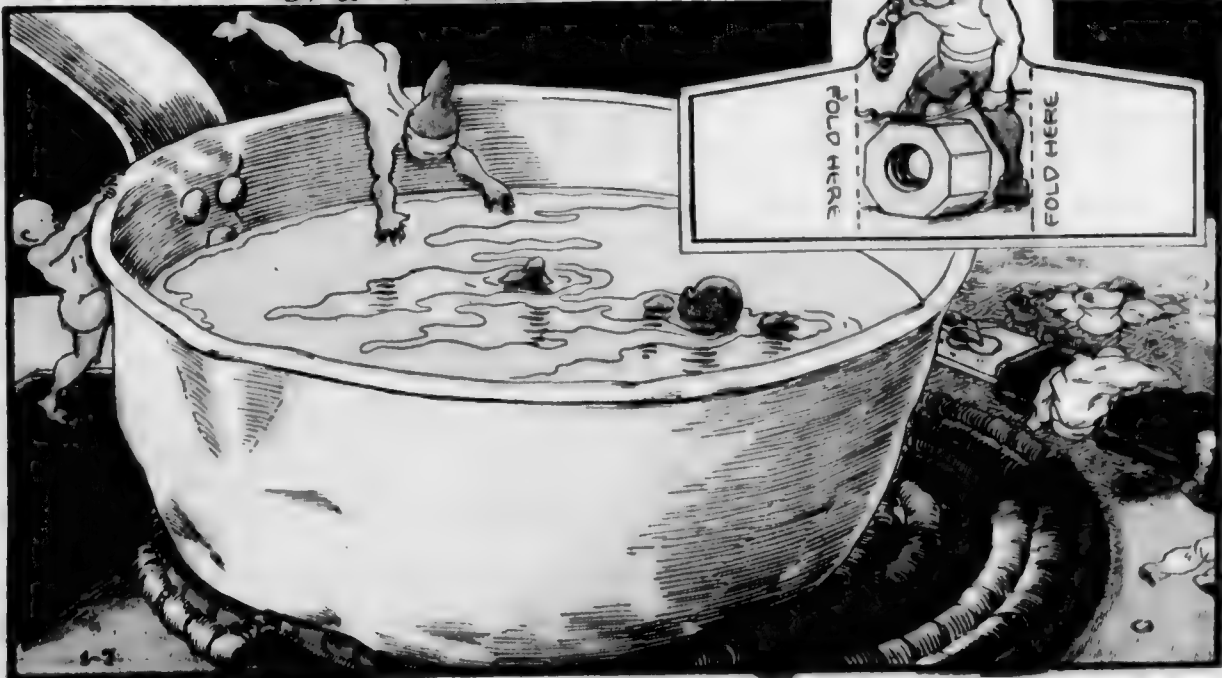

"Say, the cookies are all gone!" growled the Dunce, pointing to the empty cookie thimble. "I want something to eat." "Fo' do land sakes!" exclaimed Gogo. "Yo' all done just had yo' lunch. Ain't there no bottom to yo' stomach?" "Aw, there's nothin' to eat and nothin' to do," the Dunce complained. "Come on and let's go over to the shop and see what the Turk is doing."

The Cook and Gogo put away the last of the Teenie Weenie dishes and went with the Dunce to the coffee can which the little men used for a workshop. They found the Turk hammering the links out of a woman's hairpin. He was making some curtain rods for the Teenie Weenie dining room windows, and the Dunce, the Cook and Gogo watched him work for a few minutes. Finally, the Dunce became restless and he suggested they go to one of the big houses on the lane. "Maybe we can find something to eat there," he argued.

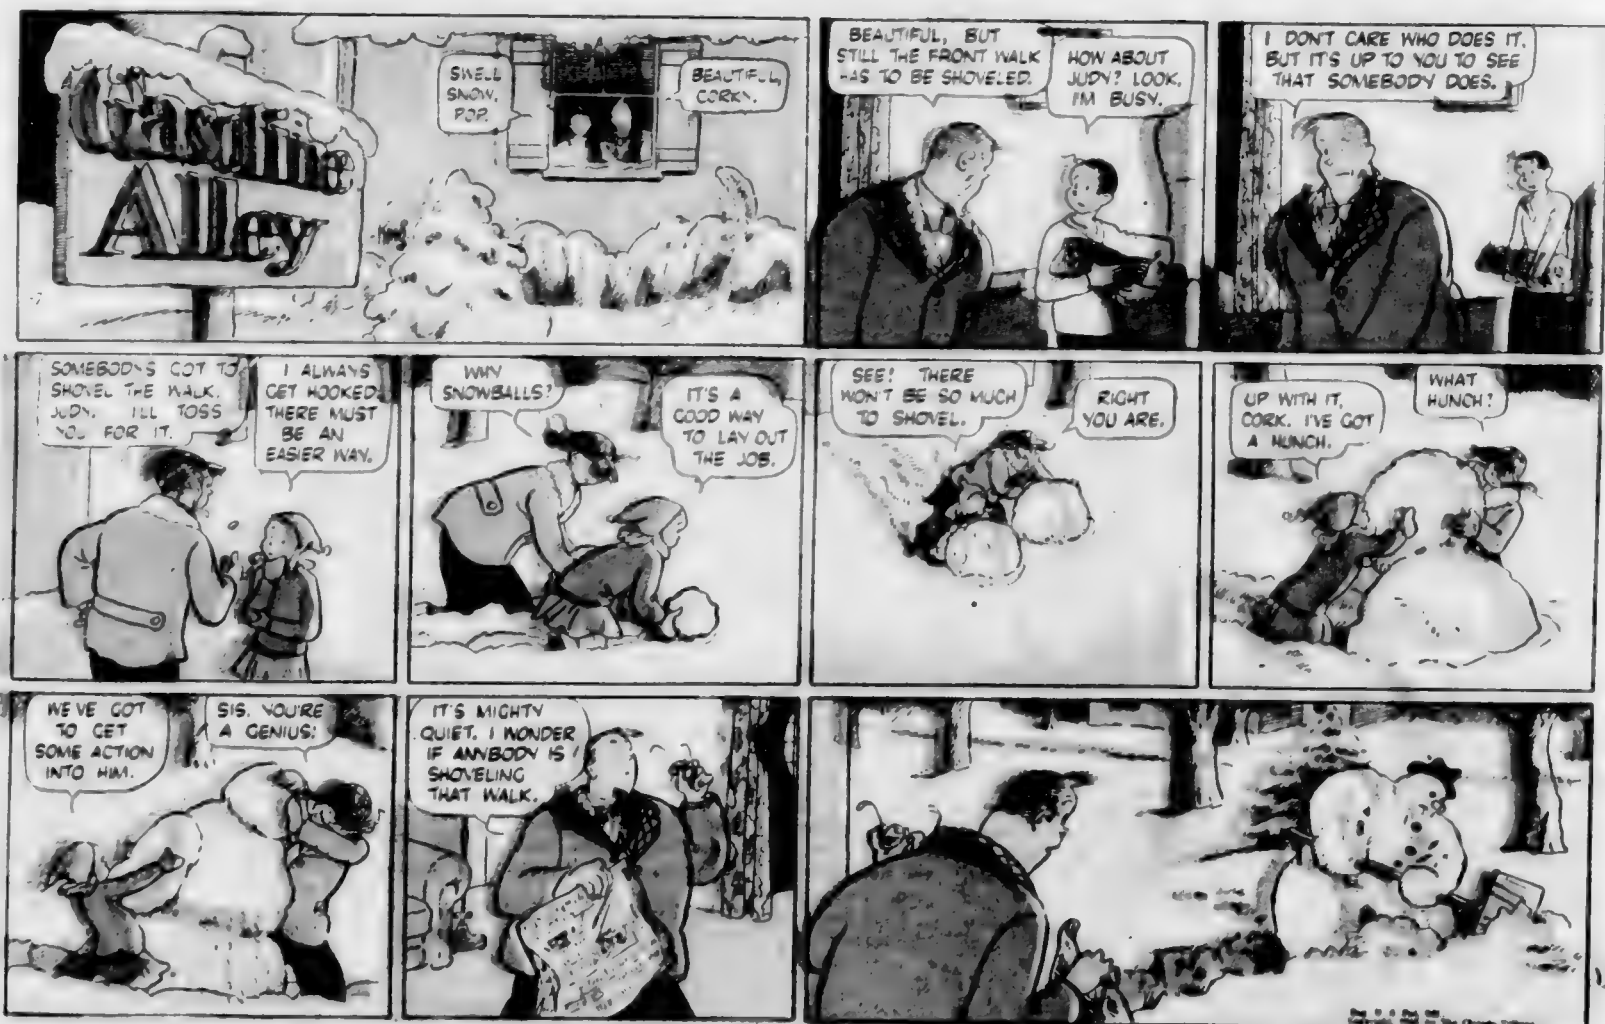

It is easy for Teenie Weenies to enter big houses, and soon the three little chaps were prowling about a cozy kitchen. They crawled up onto a table where there was a stewing pan, a paring knife and a box of safety matches. "Say!" exclaimed the Dunce, who had touched the side of the pan. "There's something warm in this pan. I'm going to find out what it is." First, he dragged the box of safety matches to the side of the pan, and then climbing onto it he was able to pull himself up to the edge of the pan. "Jimminy crooks!" shouted the Dunce, after he had leaned down and felt the contents of the pan. "There's warm water in here and it's just right for swimming."

The house was warm and no one was at home, so the little men spent the rest of the afternoon diving and swimming in the pan, for it is seldom that the Teenie Weenies have a chance to go swimming in wintertime.
